Measure would curb inflationary increases

House approval eyed on property tax bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A property tax relief bill headed onto the floor of the Ohio House today with approval expected, but with a flurry of political side issues vying for more attention.

GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes late Monday fanned the flames of a growing controversy that stems from his bid to draw new Senate and House districts, apparently to try to topple the current Democratic leadership.

Otherwise, a floor debate was scheduled in the Senate during an unusual morning session of that body on two controversial appointments by Rhodes to the State Racing Commission.

The Senate Ways and Means Committee recommended last week against the confirmation of Commission Chairman Joseph J. LoPresti of Cleveland. Rhodes' appointment of Mel J. Witt, also of Cleveland, was up for a committee roll call prior to the floor session. A 2-2 roll call Monday night was left open until today because of the absence of five committee members.

LoPresti, a former judge, and Witt, a union official, were questioned at their separate confirmation hearings about thousands of free race track passes distributed annually by the commission and staff.

They said, in response to specific questions, that many of the requests for passes came from state lawmakers, although Witt said he "took care of my friends and associates," the same as other commissioners had done in the past.

Rep. John E. Johnson, D-68 Orrville, and other sponsors predicted House approval of his measure that would give Ohio's homeowners credits on their tax bills when inflationary increases in property values have boosted their tax liabilities.

The bill offers no relief this year for taxpayers now paying or being billed for 1975 property taxes but holds the promise of about $70 million worth of tax relief statewide next year, Johnson said. Ohioans currently shell out about $1 billion a year in property taxes.

Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, said he planned to call a caucus of his 21-member Democratic majority this afternoon to discuss a major measure giving Ohio a new law for acting on consumer rate requests by the state's public utilities.

"If all goes well, we will put the measure up for a vote in the Senate on Wednesday," said Ocasek. He is proponent of the legislation which is designed to check the growth of future rate increases by electric, gas, telephone, and other utilities that are regulated by Ohio's Public Service Commission.

Remap board meet set Feb. 23

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — At least one of the two Democrats on the Republican-controlled apportionment board plans to attend Feb. 23 when GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes convenes the panel in a precarious legal bid to draw new districts for the legislature.

Veteran Sen. Anthony O. Calabrese, D-22 Cleveland, said Monday night, "Of course, I'm going. He (Rhodes) is the governor of this state."

Calabrese added, however, amid speculation Rhodes could have his plan wired ahead of time, "He's got something up his sleeve. He knows something."

Some Democrats, including Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, maintain Rhodes has no authority to call the five-member board into session. In fact, those Democrats maintain that it doesn't exist except during its function to reapportion the legislature after each federal census.

Rhodes, in his formal call for a meeting, asserted Monday night he is bound by the law to reconvene the board if it is found that existing districts are invalid.

The governor said the present districts violate the Ohio Constitution with several defeats, notwithstanding the fact that a federal judge in 1973 issued an injunction prohibiting all parties in earlier court battles from seeking further litigation in state or federal courts. Rhodes must be careful not to violate that injunction, Democratic legal spokesmen say.

Ocasek noted that the same federal judge, Chief Judge Frank J. Battisti of the northern Ohio U.S. District Court, a Democrat, held that the districts comply with the U.S. Constitution. With regard to whether they comply with state requirements, Ocasek reiterated, "It's been done. It's over with. Besides, it's not up to Jim Rhodes to say what is constitutional."

Rhodes sent letters of formal notice of the meeting to Republican Secretary of State Ted W. Brown, Rep. Frederick N. Young, R-38 Dayton — who along with the governor comprise the majority — to Calabrese and Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson. The auditor wasn't available for comment.

Young is a new addition to the board — if in fact it is being legally convened. He was named by Minority Republican leaders to replace former Rep. Robert A. Manning of Akron, a Republican who no longer is a member of the House.

Manning sat as a minority member when Democrats, under former Gov. John J. Gilligan, drew the existing Senate and House districts in 1971. That plan led to recapture of legislative control (59-40 in the House and 21-12 in the Senate) from Republicans who had held it 16 years.

Bentsen scales down plans after defeats in 2 states

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, hurt in two early candidate tests, is scaling down his national presidential campaign to a favorite son candidacy to guarantee that Texas has a voice at the Democratic National Convention, campaign officials say.

The Texan, who hoped to build momentum with early victories but suffered setbacks instead in Mississippi and Oklahoma, was expected to announce his plans at a press conference today in Austin, one day before his 55th birthday and a week before the first anniversary of his candidacy.

A favorite-son campaign would mean that he would halt his national campaign but would run in the Texas Democratic primary on May 1.

Meanwhile, Republican Ronald Reagan campaigned in New Hampshire, stressing his differences with administration policies, after President Ford made a weekend swing through the state. New Hampshire's primary, the first in the nation, is two weeks from today.

After Bentsen came out of the Mississippi caucuses Jan. 24 with less than 2 per cent of the delegats, sources close to him said if he did not do well in Oklahoma last Saturday, he would be forced to drop out. After ending up in third place among four candidates with less than 12 per cent in Oklahoma, Bentsen has been evaluating his political future during a campaign break at his Texas home.

Project to save $100,000 over 10 years

City to upgrade streets through federal funding

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald Staff Writer

Thanks to a federally-funded project, Washington C.H. will be able to upgrade city streets while saving an estimated $100,000 over the next 10 years, according to city inspector Glenn Tatman.

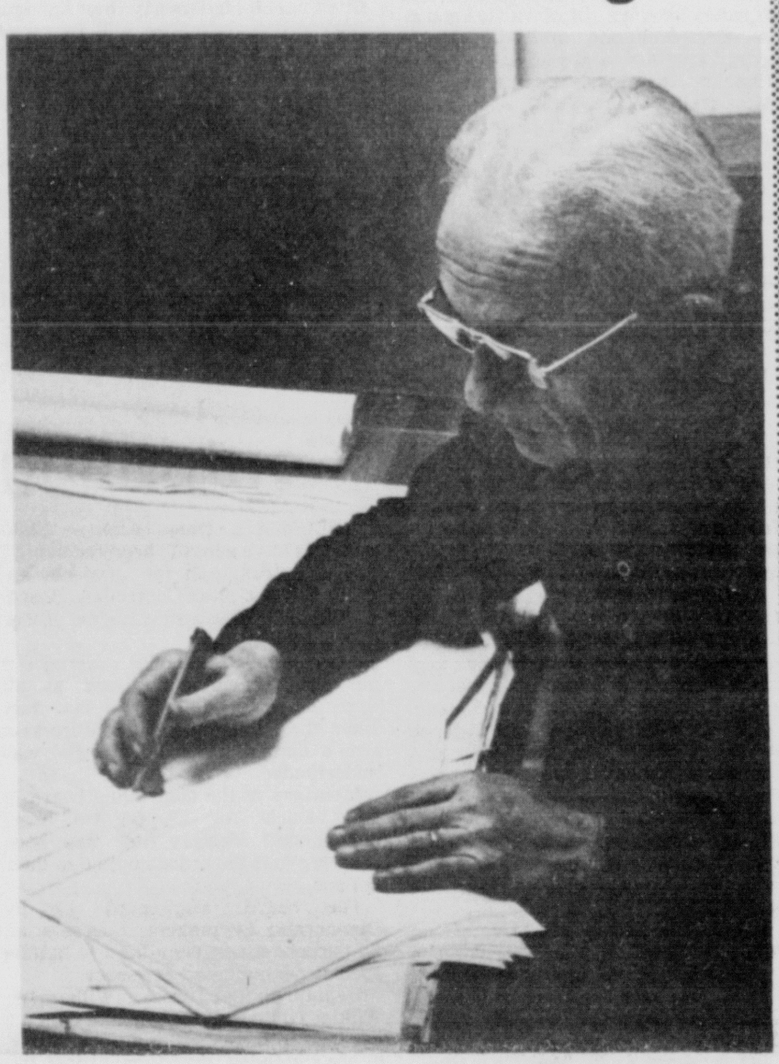

A cooperative agreement with the Ohio Department of Transportation could provide more durable street markings for Washington C.H. Provisions of the agreement, if approved by the Federal Highway Administration, state that thermoplastic markings for all intersections with traffic lights and school zones will be installed and maintained for a two-year period by the state highway department. Funds for the program were made available through the 1973 Federal Highways act.

Tatman said thermoplastic markings are more durable and adhere to the road better than the conventional bead-painted markings. The thermoplastic would be installed over the painted markings and experts say the material will last from five to ten years longer than pain. Tatman said the thermoplastic is an eighth of an inch thick and it is washed clean by the rain.

If the grant is approved and the thermoplastic installed, it could "free two men and $10,000 a year to do other work," Tatman said. Over a ten-year period, the program would save Washington C.H. $100,000.

Tatman spent some 50 hours studying the 64 intersections in Washington C.H. with traffic lights or school crossings to prepare the request. Under the program, stop lines, crosswalks,

Patty tells of fear with SLA

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Weaving a chilling saga of fear and degradation, Patricia Hearst says her Symbionese Liberation Army kidnapers forced her to embrace violent revolution and enslaved her mind with the belief she would never escape the terrorist underground.

Fighting back tears, Miss Hearst finally told her story to the world Monday in testimony at her bank robbery trial. It was a bizarre account of weeks in darkness, sexual assault, months of living with the recurring threat of death and a night of watching some of her most vicious tormentors die in flames.

Testifying with the jury absent, she said she took part in the robbery only out of fear of death and said she never surrendered because remaining SLA members threatened to stalk her for the rest of her life if she did. She was captured last Sept. 18.

With a whispy voice that was barely audible at times, the pale newspaper heiress said flight was futile as two surviving SLA members continued to carry on the legacy of those who died — to imprison her forever in a mental dungeon.

"Where could I go?" she asked several times, saying the SLA convinced her that she had been abandoned by her family and that the FBI wanted her dead.

Miss Hearst renounced all her taped communiques from the SLA as products of coercion, disclaimed her celebrated love for slain SLA member Willie Wolfe as a farce and said she was forced to help rob a bank and later tell a teen-ager that she acted freely.

"They told me I would be killed," was her simple, direct explanation of many of her actions. She said she was threatened with death "hundreds of times."

Miss Hearst, 21, took the stand at a special hearing at her bank robbery trial as the defense sought to suppress all evidence of her movements after the April 15, 1974, bank robbery.

The teen-ager to whom the defendant allegedly confessed, Thomas Dean Matthews, was scheduled to be the first witness for the prosecution today in its attempt to convince U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter to let the jury hear a tape of Miss Hearst and young Matthews' testimony.

Under questioning from chief defense attorney F. Lee Bailey, Miss Hearst said SLA members William and Emily Harris, now awaiting trial in Los Angeles, kept up the barrage of intimidation after six SLA members were killed in a fiery shootout with Los Angeles police on May 17, 1974.

She admitted under cross-examination by U.S. Atty. James L. Browning that she sprayed a sporting goods store with gunfire a day earlier to allow the Harrises to flee a bungled shoplifting attempt.

She called it a reflex action from repeated SLA indoctrination on how she should act in a given situation.

Asked by Browning if she had felt good about aiding the Harrises with her gunfire, she replied, "It did not give me any feeling, it happened so quick, I did it without even thinking."

She said the Harrises ordered her to tell Matthews that she willingly joined the SLA and freely participated in the bank robbery. If she failed to follow their instructions, she said, "they told me I would be killed."

Miss Hearst spent four hours on the stand Monday and quietly implicated nearly a dozen persons in her underground odyssey, some dead, most still alive.

She said the April 24, 1974, taped communique in which she boasted of her role in the bank robbery was written by SLA member Angela Atwood.

During cross-examination, Browning handed her the brown-barreled, sawed-off M1 carbine she had wielded in the bank and asked if it was her weapon. She said it was, holding it with both hands and basing her identification on "the stock and the bolt."

Asked if the weapon was loaded during the robbery, she replied, "I believe it was." Bailey objected at that point but was overruled, and the de-

Mrs. White, 93, enjoys today's modern conveniences

Civil War widow keeps youthful outlook

By GEOFF MAVIS
Record-Herald Staff Writer

Many years have gone by since Mrs. Viva White, now 93, married a Civil War veteran 35 years her senior. However, aside from some physical handicaps, the congenial resident of Margaret Clark Oakfield Convalescent Center on Rawlings Street still maintains a youthful love of fun.

Betrothed around the turn of the century at the age of 25, to 60-year-old Henry P. White, formerly of Company H, 176th Ohio Volunteer Infantry, Mrs. White noted that, "He was an old man and I was a kid." But, having been left an orphan at an early age, the New Holland native was eager to find a more secure life by marriage to a man she genuinely felt close to.

The newlyweds took up residence at 915 S. Main Street in Washington C. H., where Mrs. White resided until five years ago when she moved to the convalescent center. Apparently, her husband, who didn't talk much about his Civil War experiences, and was "more quiet than his wife," according to Mrs. White, did not remain inactive in his later years. A daughter, Frances, now 68, was born soon after the wedlock, and up until 1926, when Mr. White died, stock dealing was the family's main source of income.

Mrs. White never remarried after her husband's death, but chose to remain at home, look after her daughter, and carry on with the family chores. The latter duties included making dairy products, raising and butchering livestock, canning, and making clothes, all of these items being for home consumption.

Though her days were well-occupied, she did seem to find time to take her daughter to local events such as area fairs and the visiting medicine shows. Mrs. White particularly enjoyed these traveling shows and their convincing promoters of special elixirs because, "I was afraid I needed some medicine which I hadn't known about before," she said jokingly.

Mrs. White does not look back on the mud streets and saloons of earlier Washington C. H. with complete nostalgia. In her lifetime she has watched Washington C. H. grow from a farm community to a more industrialized area, and she likes the modern conveniences that accompany such growth.

There is one convenience that Mrs. White has never indulged in, and that is riding in an airplane. "I'd have been dead of fright before I stepped in," she said. Currently, she is happy just to be able to walk up and down the hallways, a feat she was not able to accomplish a few years back when a stroke and painfully arthritic legs immobilized her.

With previous help from the convalescent center staff and a metal walker, Mrs. White now frequents the hallways many times a day, visiting with and telling jokes to fellow residents and patients. In turn, she is visited constantly by friends, nurses, and ministers who like her sense of humor and enjoy her company. Her daughter, Frances, is often by her side, noting that "Since I turned 60, I've felt I can now tell mother what to do in some areas, rather than ask her."

Mrs. White, though still remaining strongly independent, has not let pride keep her from receiving aid from those who are present to help her with any difficulty that might arise. "I've enjoyed the way I've lived, and now I don't have much to worry about. People have been lovely to me, and I couldn't say anything against them."

Hearst case

fendant later said she wasn't certain.

Miss Hearst sat emotionless through much of the testimony, sipping water from a styrofoam cup and occasionally waving her right hand softly in the air as she made a point.

She startled the courtroom twice, perhaps most dramatically with her declaration that she had been sexually assaulted by Wolfe when she was kept blindfolded in a closet for several weeks after her Feb. 4, 1974, kidnaping.

She said her June 7, 1974, taped eulogy of Wolfe and the other SLA members who died in the fire was written by the Harrises. In the tape, she proclaimed her love for Wolfe, calling him the "the gentlest, most beautiful man I've ever known."

On the witness stand, however, she portrayed Wolfe as callous.

Choking back tears, Miss Hearst said Wolfe accosted her in the closet a month after her kidnaping and wasn't the only SLA member to sexually abuse her. Bailey did not pursue the matter further.

In Litchfield, Conn., Wolfe's mother, Virginia Wolfe, said, "As for my gentle Willie assaulting anyone, it's not true. He was attractive and possibly they were in love.... But assault was not part of his makeup."

A second part of Miss Hearst's testimony that caused a rustling in the hushed courtroom was her qualified admission that SLA chieftain Donald "Cinque" DeFreeze had offered her a choice of remaining with the tiny ragtag band of revolutionaries or returning home.

Under questioning by Browning, Miss Hearst said DeFreeze once came into the SLA's hideout and "said I could go home or stay with them. I didn't believe him."

She said DeFreeze ordered her to mention his offer of freedom on her tape admitting complicity in the bank robbery.

Miss Hearst testified that she and the Harrises watched live television newscasts of the shootout between six SLA members and Los Angeles police.

Killed in the Los Angeles house that became an inferno during the shootout were DeFreeze, Miss Atwood, Wolfe, Camilla Hall, Nancy Ling Perry and Patricia Soltysik. Miss Hearst said all helped plan or participated in the bank robbery.

With her attorney questioning her, she said the SLA's final stand affected her deeply. The barrage of gunfire into the frame structure reinforced her SLA-inspired belief that the FBI wanted to kill her, she said.

She noted that newscasters were suggesting she might be in the house.

"As a result of observing the public officials firing bullets and incendiary bombs into a house in which you were believed to be, did that affect your belief that the FBI would kill you?" asked Bailey.

"Yes," was the reply from the slim defendant.

After the shootout, she said, she and the Harrises fled to the Oakland-Berkeley area.

After meeting sports activist Jack Scott there, she and the Harrises separated, she said, and Scott took her by automobile to a Pennsylvania farmhouse where she spent the summer of 1974. Scott's parents accompanied them on the trip to Pennsylvania and Scott returned her to the West in the fall, she testified.

U.S. disaster aid flows to Guatemala

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (AP) — More than a sixth of Guatemala's population was reported homeless today as the official death toll from the earthquake last week topped 17,000.

President Kjell Eugenio Laugerud told diplomats that the count of casualties in last Wednesday's earthquake had risen to 17,032 dead, 54,825 injured, 221,994 homes destroyed and 1,034,441 of the nation's 6 million people homeless.

It was the worst recorded disaster in Central American history. A catastrophe of the same magnitude in the United States, where the population is 34 times as large, would result in more than 575,000 dead, nearly 1,865,000 injured and 35 million homeless.

There were complaints from many localities but "distribution of relief supplies is far better coordinated than in any other recent disaster I can recall," said Brian Moss of the U.S. Foreign Disaster Relief Office.

Col. Guillermo Echeveria of the national relief committee, said 100 armed troops were sent into four villages Monday to control food distribution.

"There have been disturbances but nothing serious," he said, denying reports that a helicopter crew was attacked and all the craft's cargo of food stolen at San Andres Itzapa, 50 miles north of Guatemala City.

Laugerud met with the diplomatic corps to discuss additional aid.

Moss said U.S. government aid so far totaled more than $1.5 million and could reach $5 million. By 4 p.m. Monday, 31 U.S. military flights delivered 500 tents, a 15-kilowatt generator to power a 200-bed hospital, 12 3,000-gallon water tanks with pumps, 16 helicopters, ambulances, a 100-bed field hospital, doctors, communications equipment, 500 pints of plasma, 5,000 doses of tetanus vaccine and large quantities of other medicines.

Private U.S. relief agencies have committed more than $13 million in short-term aid, a report from Washington said. The U.S. Embassy said these organizations have already delivered 47 tons of food and 11 tons of medicine.

Police chief raps gun control law

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland City Council leaders say their handgun registration ordinance will be an effective tool to reduce the city's homicide toll, but Police Chief Lloyd Garey had a different reaction to the new law Monday night:

"It's bad news," said Garey.

Garey said for one thing the details of registering and photographing gunowners and issuing the $5 ID cards will take many policemen from regular assignments.

"It won't be as simple as the legislation looks, and enforcement will be impossible," he said. The chief is an appointee of Mayor Ralph Perk, who has been a staunch foe of gun registration.

The Republican mayor, faced with the near certainty that a veto would be overridden, said the ordinance was "purely cosmetic," but signed it into law immediately after the Democrat-controlled council passed it by a 24-8 vote.

Council President George Forbes said the measure included an amendment delaying the deadline for registering guns 60 days so police could set up registration and enforcement machinery.

"It could produce more homicides than we have now, if people interpret the legislation as a permit to carry a weapon, and many will think that," said the chief.

He predicted there will be no beneficial effect on law enforcement and called the law a needless waste of money.

The Gun Control Federation, which drafted the ordinance, estimated there are 60,000 to 100,000 handguns in Cleveland.

However, Police Lt. Michael J. Roth, who is in charge of destruction of confiscated guns, estimated the number of handguns in the city is closer to 500,000, with an estimated 100,000 owners affected by the registration law.

In addition to getting ID cards, gunowners will have to pay $1 for each gun registered. Violators face a maximum $1,000 fine under the ordinance.

Controlling board funds also sliced

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State agencies have actually been receiving 2 per cent less than the amounts approved by the State Controlling Board, a Rhodes Administration budget officer has disclosed.

Gov. James A. Rhodes ordered a 2 per cent spending cutback at all agencies under his control last July when the Democratic legislature sent him a budget which he charged was underfunded.

Members of the controlling board, a key vehicle for Democratic fiscal policy, said Monday they had been unaware that the order applied to their actions.

The board, dominated 4-3 by Democratic lawmakers, oversees an all-purpose emergency fund to handle special nonbudgeted expenses.

Deputy Budget Director William W. Wilkins confirmed that he had culled 2 per cent from the $8.6 million released by the watchdog finance panel over the past seven months.

That came as an admitted surprise to Controlling Board President Robert Howarth, who works with Wilkins in the budget office. Budget Director Howard Collier had earlier said he didn't know whether the spending restriction applied.

"You have the right guy here," Wilkins said following Collier's testimony. "I'm the guy who made the interpretation that the 2 per cent should apply."

Control board fiscal expert Richard Sheridan estimated that about $169,000 had been slashed from funding requests since July.

"We were working under the assumption that his was the full amount from that department when they asked for it," said House Finance Chairman Myrl H. Shoemaker, D-88 Bourneville. "The (agency) request should have been reduced by 2 per cent."

Shoemaker said the controllers would attempt to recoup the $169,000 to add to their dwindling emergency fund. "Some way, we should have been apprised of the 2 per cent," he said.

Wilkins shouldered the blame for the breakdown in communications but sought to downplay the impact of the cutback.

"One hundred sixty-eight thousand dollars isn't going to make or break us at the state level," he said. The state is operating under an $11.3 billion budget for the current two-year fiscal period.

Wilkins will become budget director on April 10 when Collier departs to resume his duties as chief finance officer at the Medical College of Toledo.

Couple wed, divorced, rewed in battle over income taxes

The Boyters' second marriage is only a month old, but already they say they are contemplating their second divorce. Their first divorce was in Haiti Dec. 8, ending a nine-year marriage. They remarried a month later.

Their behavior is the result of anger — not directed at each other, but at the American income tax system. The Boyters say the system favors single persons over married taxpayers.

"We did it more for principle than anything else," Mrs. Boyter said. "We just kept getting madder and madder each year."

Both Boyters work for the federal government and earn about $23,000 each annually.

Mrs. Boyter estimates their 1975 taxes as a married couple would be about $10,300, regardless of whether they filed a joint or single return. If they were single, she says, each would pay about $4,500, a total of $9,000. The $1,300 difference added up to divorce for them.

"About three years ago they gave a tax break to single persons," Mrs. Boyter said. "But that doesn't apply to married persons filing separately.

"And then, with last year's tax rebate we got rooked again. If we had been two single people we would have gotten back about $200 each. As a married couple we just got $100. I think that was the last straw.

"If they don't change the laws, I have every intention of getting a divorce again this year."

It is possible for a couple earning about equal salaries to save some money by filing as single persons, said David Estey, a spokesman for the Internal Revenue Service's Baltimore office.

He said Congress passed the Revenue Act of 1971 to bring rates for single persons in line with the rates for married couples.

In some income brackets, it is cheaper to file as a single person, he added, but there is a question whether the tax saving is worth the inconvenience and expense of a divorce.

The Boyter's divorce in Haiti cost about $1,100 — including air fare, hotel and lawyer fees.

Percy Faith succumbs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Percy Faith, who turned to composing and arranging music after an accident kept him from becoming a concert pianist, is dead of cancer at 67.

Faith was born in Canada and at 18 was studying piano at the Toronto Conservatory of Music when tragedy hit.

His promising piano career gone, Faith turned instead to writing and conducting music.

Faith worked composing and orchestrating music and led an orchestra in the Toronto area.

In the early 1930s, he was an arranger-conductor for Canadian radio. He moved to the United States in 1940 and became prominent on the airwaves here.

In addition to helping singers win gold records, Faith was nominated for an Academy Award and is credited with recording more than 45 albums for Columbia, the company he joined in 1950 as musical director of its popular division.

Farmers hold out on wheat

Farmers were offered $3.91 a bushel for 14 per cent protein wheat at markets in the state Monday, but little trading was reported. Protestors have demanded as much as $5 to $5.25 a bushel.

North Dakota Agriculture Commissioner Myron Just said that although the production cost for a bushel of wheat varies across the state, the average "break even point" is about $4 a bushel, or nine cents more than farmers were offered Monday.

Said Gordon Smaaladen, manager of the Crosby Farmers Co-op Elevator, "They are not selling and I'm not selling cash grain either. I'm in favor of anything that will get the farmers a better price and I'll work with them for it."

Verl Loyland, manager of the Finley Farmers Grain and Elevator Co., also reported few transactions. He said the timing for the stall was good because processors' stocks are low.

"Canada is sold out of No. 1 and No. 2 wheat," he said, adding that users will have difficulty getting more stocks quickly. "This type of holding action would work very well at this time."

A committee of farmers coordinating the holding action was scheduled to meet today in Bismarck to examine the effects and plan further action.

Just said the farmers' action may slow sales to a "trickle" because it apparently has "general support from the farmers."

lane lines in the form of dashes, channelizing lines along with symbols and legends such as directional arrows and the work "only" will be marked with thermoplastic.

Tatman's request would supply the city with over three miles of thermoplastic markings.

"This (project) is funded 100 per cent by the federal government and there are no strings attached," Tatman said. In 1973, a similar federal project supplied the city with 186, 30-inch stop signs and last year the project was broadened the posts for the signs were furnished. Washington C.H. is also taking advantage of a federally-funded project that will upgrade railroad crossings on city streets.

Tatman said he submitted the request for the thermoplastic markings early and hopes the installation of the thermoplastic will begin in May.

Submitting the request for the thermoplastic markings has taken up most of Tatman's time this year. Last year, the city inspector was involved in numerous special projects.

The city inspector's 1975 projects included the installation and relocation of parking fine boxes, the relocation of the parkings spaces in the off street lots, relocation of traffic lights at Clinton and Leesburg avenues, installation of stop, speed limit, yield, and no outlet signs, a paving project of Clinton Ave. and old U.S. 35, no turn on red survey and installation, railroad crossing survey for federal funds project, hospital sign project with the Washington C.H. Jaycees, installation of new sewers and the Environmental Protection Agency testing of the installed sewers.

Other projects included ordering the demolition of unsafe housing, construction of new railroad crossings on Court, Temple, Market and Pearl Streets, establishing detours for railroad crossings and paving, and a new subdivision survey for Gilmore Homes and Methodist (retired ministers) Housing.

The city inspector issued 163 housing permits and completed 1,413 building inspections last year. Tatman also issued 92 electrical permits and made 80 electrical inspections. Sixty-two plumbing permits were issued and 44 plumbing inspections were made.

Tatman inspected 27 zoning applications and reviewed 297 zoning queries in 1975. He also received over 2,500 complaints including 100 complaints on weeds, 192 on trash and 974 street department complaints.

During the first month of 1976, Tatman made 85 building inspections and issued three building permits. Six electrical permits were issued and 12 inspections made while two plumbing permits were issued and four inspections made.

He also reviewed 14 zoning queries and received 231 complaints last month.

Stock list turns mixed

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off almost a point in the early going, but gainers took a 4-3 lead over losers in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exhange-listed issues.

Alan Greenspan, the chief White House economic adviser, repeated to newsmen this morning his view that the economic recovery was in its "moderately early stages" and potentially could last for a very long time.

But the effect of such optimism seemed to be counter-balanced in the market by a continuing inclination among investors to nail down some profits from the record-breaking rally that took place in January.

Economy top issue, Gallup says

OXFORD, Ohio (AP)—Opinion pollster George Gallup told a Miami University crowd of 400 Monday night that the economic situation looms as the biggest factor in the 1976 presidential election.

Gallup, president of Gallup Polls Inc. and the American Institute of Public Opinion, said that, historically, incumbent presidents have been at their lowest periods of popularity in times of recession and low employment.

Gallup took issue with the public media often giving an unbalanced account of the American situation by emphasizing the negative. Yet, he said, current polls show some "frightening" things about the public mood.

"People tend to feel satisfied with their own situation at home but are disillusioned with many aspects of the national situation," Gallup said.

He said people feel frustrated because politicians are not talking about the things which the polls show people want. He said these included electoral reform, crime prevention, a period of national service and "the whole idea of release from the ghetto."

He added, "before we bemoan our fate, let's ask ourselves these questions: Are we participating in the political process? Are we doing a proper job with our children? Are we studying the issues and reading up on the them? Are we doing what we should in life—in the proper job? Are we putting our religious beliefs into practice? And our those of us in communication trying to create a new national mood?."

Gallup said only six in 10 vote, half are unable to name their congressman, only few know what he stands for and young people seem to be forfeiting their opportunity to try to bring about political change. He said surveys show half the people would go into another career if they had to start over.

Lockheed Aircraft may not be able to repay on loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp., which doled out more than $20 million in payoffs to foreign government officials, may not be able to repay bank loans guaranteed by the federal government.

U.S. Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats, in a report to Congress dated Jan. 30, said Lockheed has forecast operating profits through 1979 that are "sufficient to maintain the company's stability, but insufficient to liquidate its guaranteed bank loans by the end of 1978 — the maximum time provided by law."

The report also indicated Lockheed's management was worried that publicity about the company's foreign bribes would harm sales overseas.

Staat's revelation followed testimony last week in which A.C. Kotchian, Lockheed's chief operating officer, told a Senate subcommittee details of many payoffs, some of them totaling millions of dollars, to foreign officials in an effort to assure sales of company planes.

Lockheed earlier had admitted paying some $22 million to foreign officials.

Congress, under a 1971 law, authorized a government guarantee of up to $250 million in loans to Lockheed. The loans were to be repaid by the end of 1975 but were renewable for no more than three years. Last May, the Emergency Loan Guarantee Board extended the government guarantee through the end of 1977.

As of Dec. 31, 1975, Lockheed's overall bank loans totaled $595 million. Of that amount, $195 million was guaranteed by the federal government.

To achieve profit projections in the near future, Lockheed is counting on substantial revenues from foreign sources, according to Staats.

Report from citizens study committee

City government has changed

The citizens study committee was appointed by Washington C.H. City Manager George H. Shapter to Look into the needs of the city of Washington C.H. and present ideas of how to solve those needs and to acquaint the people of the community of the needs.

For the past several weeks, the citizens study committee has been studying the overall city budget. Committee members felt this should be their immediate concern. The committee has reached several conclusions; mainly that Washington C.H. City Council members, the city manager and those that are involved in city government have a monumental task in trying to balance the budget for the year 1976. In view of the deficit in the city budget and the fact that the city government operations are already in the second month of the year, the committee feels that immediate action should be taken to balance the budget.

In reaching the conclusion, the committee was aware that it now has a complete and detailed budget to work with; one set of figures that are as accurate as can be, taking into consideration that much of the income has to be estimated. It is evident that the city manager has spent endless hours in turning this budget into its simplest form and is readily available for any concerned citizen to stop in and look at it in the city offices.

There is indecision among members of Washington C.H. City Council about which direction they must take in providing the residents of Washington C.H. the best possible services for the least amount of money, and what money is available.

For years now, past City Council members have legislated an income tax in an effort to raise monies to operate the city in a reasonable and business like manner. The income tax has been brought to a vote and defeated.

This gives an indication that the residents of Washington C.H. want to cut back in services, cut back in personnel in the police and fire departments and turn off the street lights.

The committee feels this is not the true picture of the wants and needs of the community, but instead there has been a credibility gap in showing the true financial picture of the community.

Therefore, the citizens study committee has come to the conclusion that it should make an all-out effort to show the true financial picture of the city and the committee members will attempt to do this with a series of articles to be published on the editorial page in the Record-Herald. The committee members will attempt to have the articles in the simplest form that they can be presented.

The committee will be writing about the general fund, where the money comes from, where the money goes, and what it costs to operate the city. Other topics will cover how much of the tax dollar goes to the city, why some funds can't be transferred from one fund to another, what the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA program is all about, is the city keeping up with it obligations and should we have a master plan?

The citizens committee members hope to better educate the residents of Washington C.H. of the complex overall workings of the city government. The committee invites Washington C.H. residents to clip the articles and save them, and above all, if you question something that appears or simply do not understand, contact a member of the citizens study committee.

In the next series on Thursday, Feb. 12, the topic will be: "The general fund — Where does the money come from?"

Shapter's views

As to procedures it is City Manager George Shapter's belief that public business should be documented and the documentation made available to the public so that they can be well-informed of city government operations.

SHAPTER

Shapter expects the city offices to reflect that of a well-organized business with well-informed employes providing a courteous and impartial service to the public. At the same time, he expects these employes to be justly compensated for their knowledge, experience and tenure.

He believes the city cannot overcome its problems in a single stroke. His challenge is to initiate those changes within the city's organizational structure that will approach the problems in a logical manner so as to maximize the result obtained from each dollar spent.

City business has expanded rapidly in recent years and the city is no longer able to efficiently operate with outmoded systems. To obtain 1976 caliber results, the city must have available 1976 caliber tools with which to do the job.

Eye early attack on heart problems

CINCINNATI (AP) — Heart researchers are hoping they can head off heart problems in later life for newborns by controlling their mothers diet during the breast feeding period.

"We know that artherosclerosis, hardening of the arteries, is a degenerative disease of age," said Dr. Charles Glueck, director of the Lipids Center at the University of Cincinnati.

"A lot of people think that when a man dies of a heart attack at age 45, that the process of hardening of the arteries occurred overnight. The process begins in childhood.

"Artherosclerosis from the cradle to the grave—that's what we're looking at," Glueck said. "The more we can learn about it, at any age, the better off we are."

Twenty-four pregnant women have been enrolled in the program and will participate after their babies are a month old.

They will be furnished with a 12-week diet. The first six weeks the mothers will eat high fat and protein diets and low cholesterol food the second week. Doctors will take milk samples and blood samples from the babies during the period to see if a high cholesterol diet effects both the milk and blood.

Glueck noted that only 20 per cent of babies in the United States are now breast fed while the other 80 per cent get formulas.

"It is clear that infants thrive on a variety of early milk feedings, whether breast milk, commercial formula or formulas made from condensed cow milk," he said.

"Breast feeding is historically a superlative way to feed babies. I think there are some clear benefits from breast feeding, both psychological and biochemical.

"The important comparison we hope to make, based on data we already have, is how do these breast fed babies compare to formula fed babies and can we discern any advantages or disadvantages in simulating the mothers milk for the formula," he said.

Dr. Glueck said he anticipates the study will provide other information on fat soluble vitamins "a" and "e" in breast milk. The data will be useful to formula manufacturers.

He noted that very little scientific information on mothers milk is available compared to veterinarian studies of cows milk.

"There are voluminous papers about the constituents of cows milk from various species of cattle and there has been very little study on the fat composition, cholesterol and fatty acid composition of breast milk and how it changes," Dr. Glueck said.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Seeks love secrets of red-blooded Americans

DEAR ABBY: I am a 35-year-old man who's in love with a beautiful, 28-year-old divorcee. I want to marry her, but she keeps wanting more time to think it over.

In the meantime, she's seeing another man, and I'm afraid he has the edge on me. You see, he's part Kickapoo Indian, and I hear Indians are superior to the white man when it comes to lovemaking: Closely guarded tribal secrets on how to satisfy a woman are passed down from father to son. If there is any truth to that, I'm willing to pay whatever is necessary to find out.

Let me say that I was married for four years, and I never had any complaints fom my wife, but if Indians are better lovers than white men, I would like to find out why.

Maybe your readers can help. Thank you.

ED IN EAST ILLINOIS

DEAR ED: I can offer two suggestions: Try The Bureau of Indian Affairs or the American Indian Movement.

DEAR ABBY: With reference to that ding-a-ling who is seriously considering suing his parents for $100,000 for having him circumcised as an infant-a "barbaric surgery, an assault on his person, which permanently maimed and disfigured him." In my opinion, he was circumcised at the wrong end.

YIDDISH MAMA: SILVER SPRINGS, MD.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 50-year-old nurse who has been widowed for 15 years.

In the line of duty, I took care of a very attractive well-to-do widower, age 59. When he left the hospital, he asked if he could see me again so we could get better acquainted. I agreed.

It took him nearly six months to call me, after which we started dating. I was on cloud eight! We've been going out for over a year now, and he proposed marriage.

My problem is that he admits that he is still seeing several other women and says that until he has a definite answer from me he will continue to date others.

Abby, this has turned me off on him and made me skeptical of his so-called marriage proposal. I am losing respect for him. If a man thinks enough of a woman to want to marry her, why would he want to date other women?

How can I say yes tonight when I know he had another woman in his arms last night?

FRUSTRATED AT 50

DEAR FRUSTRATED: My guess is that he is trying to maneuver you into an early decision. If you want to marry him, say yes. And until you do, he's a free agent.

A WORD EDGEWISE...By John P. Roche

The taste of SALT

No sane American can oppose efforts to achieve symmetrical strategic arms limitation with the Soviet Union (SALT), but where some of us differ strongly with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is over his confusion of hard-boiled negotiations to avert nuclear war with detente. We are convinced, for example, that in the past Kissinger has made concessions on SALT in the full expectation that the Soviets would behave, or get their clients to behave, in Indochina, the Middle East and now Angola.

Indeed, if you go back and look at the original SALT negotiations and then at the hit-and-run session at Vladivostok, you discover an interesting pattern. When we have signed or initialed the agreements, we have issued unilateral statements underscoring our expectations about Soviet behavior. The Soviets have not publicly commented on their view of our expectations (though Brezhnev has probably regaled the Politburo with his reaction to this quaint American custom). They have simply made it clear they accept Kissinger's freedom of speech.

Thus arose the great dispute over Moscow's "cheating" on SALT. There is not the slightest doubt in my mind that Moscow has been moving heaven and earth to attain nuclear superiority, but when you get out the original SALT documents you find contrived ambiquities. Then you realize that they have been "cheating" in terms of Kissinger's unilateral explanation of what these ambiguities really meant. Since Brezhnev did not repudiate these footnotes at the time, the presumption was made by Kissinger that silence indicated consent. This novel diplomatic notion would have been treated with scorn by Professor Kissinger in a Harvard seminar, but only a few small-minded nay-sayers like "Scoop" Jackson, James Schlesinger and Paul Nitze have objected as the Chairman has peddled this absurdity around Washington.

Curiously, Kissinger allowed the Palestinian Liberation Organization to be bootlegged into the United Nation's Security Council on precisely this gambit. Ambassador Pat Moynihan was instructed to treat the P.L.O.'s presence at the Middle East session as "procedural" (not subject to veto) on the grounds that the Council can invite anybody in to make a speech. This is good law, but then Soviet spokesman Jacob Malik announced that, in the view

But Brezhnev simply plays by different rules, and we have nobody to blame but ourselves for our problems. As the old saying goes, "The first time you get taken for a ride, blame the other guy; the second time, kick yourself." Since Lenin's day the Communists have rejected Kissinger's beloved concept of "linkage," and there is no reason to believe that this persuasive charm is going to alter the character of the Politburo. Particularly when those veteran ideaological gangsters think they have a winner. I would love to see the K.G.B.'s "psychiatric profile" of Chairman Kissinger, a character who, no matter how many times you kick him, comes back for more. ((When Kissinger announced in Moscow that Angola was on the detente agenda, Brezhnev quipped that the Secretary was free to discuss the question with his State Department aide, Helmut Sonenfeld!)

"Linkage" just isn't on and never has been. Boshevik theory makes a sharp distinction between formal state relations and subversive activities. I think it was the early Soviet Foreign Commissar Chicherin who observed wryly that one of a Bolshevik ambassador's tasks was to measure bourgeois leaders for Communist nooses. Thus it was predictable that Brezhnev flatly refused to discuss Angola with Kissinger. Why should he? "Peaceful coexistence" (as Moscow calls detente) always had a provision excluding "wars of liberation" from the sunshine of mutual cooperation! They are simply barred from the detente agenda.

In short, by unilaterally ending the Cold War we have set ourselves up for some nasty shocks - the fall of Indochina, the Yom Kippur War, and the ongoing "liberation" of Angola by those Communist Gurkhas, the Cubans. Isn't it time the spell was broken and we came out of our trance? The Cold War, anyone?

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, Feb. 10, the 41st day of 1976. There are 325 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1763, France ceded Canada to England as the Treaty of Paris was signed, ending the French and Indian war.

On this date:

In 1962, the Soviet Union exchanged the captured American U-2 pilot Gary Francis Powers for a Soviet spy held by the United States, Rudolf Abel.

In 1964, the U.S. House of Representatives passed the most far-reaching civil rights bill ever considered by the Congress.

Today's birthdays: Opera singer Leontyne Price is 49. Actress Judith Anderson is 78.

Thought for today: To speak kindly does not hurt the tongue — a French proverb.

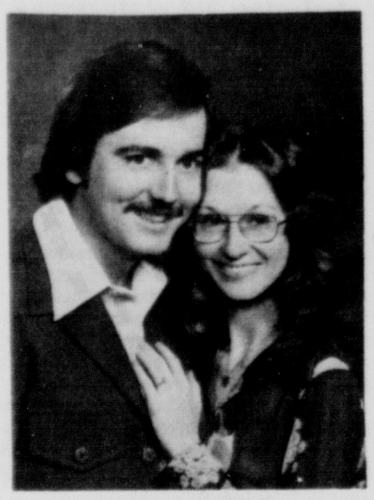

Bicentennial footnote: Two-hundred years years ago today, at Cambridge, Mass. General George Washington, whose troops were short of arms, asked the New York Safety Committee to send him any guns confiscated from Tories.

HOME MAINTENANCE SERIES

A new opportunity comes our way with a TV series called "Yes, You Can", scheduled to begin February 17th on WOSU Channel 34. Our local Cable TV will carry this program on Channel 8 starting on February 17, 7:00 P.M. for the nest nine Tuesdays. This series of lessons helps you to save the cost of minor repairs and maintenance by learning to do the job yourself. The lessons are: Feb. 17 - Shock of Your Life (Simple Electric Repairs); Feb. 24 - Cleaning On A Shoestring (Low Cost Cleaners); Mar. 2 - Faucet Fixits (Stop Leaky Faucets); Mar. 9 - Toilet Tuneup (Repairs and Adjustments); Mar. 16 - Wise Up—Tighten Up (Caulking & Weather Stripping); March 23 - Paint It Yourself (Exterior); Mar. 30 - The Great Cover Up (Wall Repair); Apr. 6 - Paint It Yourself (Interior); Apr. 13 - Making Space Stretch (Storage Ideas);

If you plan on watching the series (2 or more programs) please call and indicate which programs you plan to watch. I'll send you a free leaflet for that lesson so you can follow along and take notes and-or have it for reference later. I hope many of you can watch the series, as the programs are well done and easy to follow for step by step do-it-yourself instructions. Since everyone does not have Cable TV please share this information with your firends and neighbors, too. Perhaps you'd like to have them over to view the program with you. I hope you enjoy the "at-home easy chair learning" we're offering this winter. Your response by your enrollment will indicate to us whether we do it again.

Garden Club observes b'days

The Washington Garden Club met in the home of Mrs. Robert Wilson when a covered dish luncheon was enjoyed at noon, to observe the club member's birthdays. Mrs. T.N. Willis gave the invocation and favors of owl refrigerator magnets were made for each one by Mrs. Eugene Cook.

Following the meal, a business session was conducted by Mrs. Wilson. Each name a branch she had forced indoors for roll call. Some named were leather leaf viburnum, clove bush, pussy willow, lilac, mock orange, honeysuckle, pink spirea, kerria, Japonica, bridal wreath, white spirea and forsythia.

A thank you from Miss Mary K. West of Memorial Hospital for the subscription of "Range Rick" for the children's ward at the hospital, was read, and a thank you note from Mrs. Jane K. Hyer for the door swag made for the boy's cottage at the Fayette County Children's Home for the holidays.

The club voted to purchase 50 Scotch pine trees for the club members and for the Rose Avenue Rose Petals Blue Bird group. Mrs. Donald Meredith is chairman of the Garden Club trees. Orders for the trees are to be sent in by Feb. 20.

Mrs. Wilson reported on the County Fair Show schedule and the new changes made.

It was announced that a contest on Rural Mail Boxes to be decorated for the Bicentennial year, will be conducted. These will be judged by townships and prizes awarded by the Garden Club Presidents' Council. Mrs. Edwin Thompson of the Fayette Garden Club is chairman of the project.

Due to conflicting dates, Jerry Cremeans will conduct the March program instead of in February.

Mrs. Donald Meredith conducted the program on "Pruning Shrubs and Trees." She said that tools for pruning are sharp purning shears, tree saw and paint, and that pruning is a way of caring for and showing one cares about trees whether they are flowering, fruit or shade trees. One should not prune if the temperature is under 45 degrees, she said. She also stated that one should make a straight cut behind where a limb is broken, and anything larger than one inch should be sawed and painted. The paint is to keep out insects and disease. One should never prune early blooming shrubs until after they bloom, she also said, and that one prunes for the beauty care and health of trees and shrubs.

Cheer sisters were revealed and new names drawn for the year. Mrs. Jess Robinett and Mrs. Walter Wilson were prize winners, and the group will meet at Anderson's Restaurant for the March meeting.

At meeting of local Kiwanis Club

Importance of agriculture here disclosed

The importance of agriculture in Fayette County was discussed with members of the Washington C. H. Kiwanis Club during their regular weekly dinner meeting Monday night in the Terrace Lounge.

"While industry might have its ups and downs, agriculture will take up the slack," said John P. Gruber, Fayette County agricultural extension agent.

"Your local businessman can tell when the farmer is going through financial problems. Agriculture will always be a vital part of this community," Gruber said. "With some of the best soil in the state, Fayette County farmers will not be vacating their production plants and moving to other communities as industry might do."

In 1969, gross cash farm receipts from marketing in Fayette County totaled $20,800,000. In 1974, Gruber said, the figure was $43,000,000. For each $1 of farm receipts, $3 to $5 is pumped into the economy of the Fayette County area and the state.

Gruber pointed out that sources of farm income have changed. In 1969 sales from livestock accounted for 75 per cent. Today, he said, corn soybeans and wheat account for 60 per cent of the total, partially due to the increase in grain prices and the fact that livestock prices are less competitive.

The agriculture extension agent noted that productivity has increased in Fayette County. He said in 1969 the government made farm payments of $1.9 million in Fayette County to cut back farm production. The subsidies decreased to $28,000 in 1974.

There are 973 farms in Fayette County with an overall average of $38,000 per farm of gross cash farm receipts from marketing.

The meeting was conducted by Tom Mossbarger and the program was arranged by Jack Sommers. Harry Campbell, father of Kiwanis Club member Mike Campbell, was a guest.

Red Cross chapter hears disaster services chief

Fayette County Disaster Services Agency director Raldon M. Smith was guest speaker at the Fayette County chapter of the American Red Cross Monday night in the choir room of Grace United Methodist Church, corner of North and Market streets.

Smith briefly told how his agency is coordinated with the Red Cross First Aid agency headed by Paul Woods and went on to explain some of the things being done on the local level to avert disaster such as the radio monitors being installed in all Fayette County schools.

Jack Brennan, chairman of the Fayette County Red Cross, called for committee reports over the past three months when the group last met. Woods stated his day care first aid course had been completed and more classes in first aid were being scheduled in the future for various groups in the community.

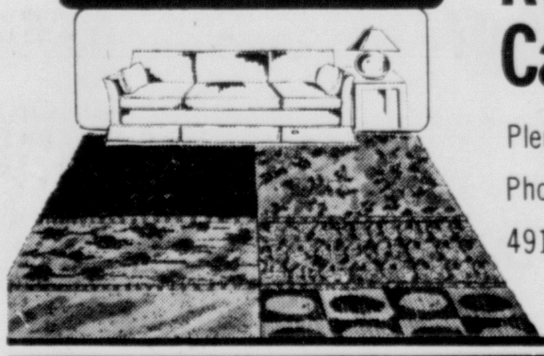

The subject of purchasing a resuscitator "Annie" which is a life-size manakin used as a teaching aid for artificial resuscitation (mouth-to-mouth breathing) and external heart massage was brought up to enhance Woods' first aid course and Red Cross demonstrations. The local chapter approved the purchase after prices and the differtent models of the "Annie" teaching aid were studied.

Helen Slavens, new executive secretary for the Fayette County chapter of the American Red Cross, reported her first blood drive was successful, bringing in 184 pints in spite of the bad weather last Friday when the drive was held.

Brennan appointed one member to serve on a nominating committee to select officers for the 1976 Red Cross year. Tom Mark was chosen and more will be selected at a later date.

Al Justus, national representative to the Columbus Division of the American Red Cross, thanked the board for allowing Helen Slavens to spend a week in Columbus training for her new position.

So how's it doing? Quite well, according to A. C. Nielsen audience estimates. CBS' world of real is outdrawing the make-believe Robinson isle and giving Disney & Co. a brisk run for the money.

Excluding Jan. 11, when "60 Minutes" was bumped for a Tom Sawyer movie, Nielsen figures up to Feb. 1 show that the news program has been seen in an average of 12.2 million homes over an eight-week period.

Which is more than double the audience for the low-rated family show it replaced, "Three for the Road," according to Nielsen figures on that show from October through November.

NBC's durable Disney series still remains king of he Sunday night family hour, averaging more than 14.2 million homes in the eight-week period "60 Minutes" has been rated by the Nielsen folks.

But those ratings show ABC's Robinson series, the second-ranked Sunday "Family Hour" program when the season began, now in third place. The only time it had a larger audience than "60 Minutes" was on Dec. 7, when the CBS program premiered in its new 7 p.m. EST time slot.

For the last three years, "60 Minutes" has appeared on Sundays at 6 p. m. EST, except during the summers, when it appeared in prime evening time, and during the football season, when it went off the air.

He said that when the show was scheduled to compete with the Disney series and "Swiss Family Robinson," "I was told that if we got a 25 per cent share of the audience we'll be doing well."

Rites held for Cloud

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Funeral services were scheduled today for Montgomery County administrator Thomas Cloud, 41, who died Friday of a heart attack.

Cloud, who served in a variety of public service posts, including county commissioner and Wayne Township trustee, ran unsuccessfully in 1974 for the Republican nomination for state auditor. He lost to Roger W. Tracy Jr.

Former county Administrator Paul Stockert said Cloud talked continually about innovations in county government. He said Cloud was interested in efforts to link city and county administration in such places as Indianapolis, Ind., and Nashville, Tenn.

"I think once he accepted the job as county administrator he never gave much thought to politics," said Stockert.

Cloud, an industrial engineer, was a graduate of the General Motors Institute.

Sugar Mapel festival slated near Oxford

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — The Sugar Maple Festival is scheduled for the last weekend in February and the first two weekends in March at Hueston Woods State Park near Oxford, the Department of Natural Resources announced.

Tigers, baboons to be added to preserve at Kings Island

KINGS MILLS, O. — Nicolas Reindl, new zoological director of Lion Country Safari at Kings Island, has announced the 100-acre wildlife preserve will feature the addition of 10 Bengal tigers and 50 Olive baboons this season.

A new section is currently being prepared in the preserve for the tigers, which are considered a rare and endangered species.

The baboons will be introduced into the lion section since the animals live together in a natural habitat.

Reindl, 25, said the aggressive baboons will create a livelier atmosphere and increased interest in the lion section.

The Bengal tigers are native to Asia and, unlike the lions, will not live in prides or social groups. They are more independent and will not reproduce offspring as regularly as lions in captivity.

The tigers will weight between 300 and 400 pounds and eat on the average of 12 pounds of meat per day.

The natural habitat of baboons is tropical Africa. They are generally considered the strongest primates of their size and will breed freely in captivity. Their diet consists mostly of fruits and insects.

Reindl said the preserve is undergoing extensive landscape renovation in preparation for the 1976 season. All grassy areas have been reseeded and much of the underbrush has been cleared, to give better visibility of the animals.

Kings Island visitors travel through Lion Country Safari in air-conditioned monorail cars. The tours are accompanied by guides and last approximately 20 minutes.

Last season four African cheetahs and 25 antelope of various species were added to the preserve. The animals brought in when Lion Country Safari opened in 1974 include rhinoceros, giraffe, hippopotamus, elk, zebra, antelope, ostrich, elephants, and lions.

Reindle said the tigers and baboons will arrive here early in April.

Kings Island, including Lion Country Safari, reopens April 24 for preview weekends. All attractions are scheduled to be in full operation for grand opening weekend, May 29-31.

Kings Island is located north of Cincinnati on I-71.

Special secretary employed by bicentennial commission

The Fayette County Bicentennial Commission has taken another positive step towards coordinating activities concerned with the celebration of the nation's 200th birthday. A special secretary has been employed by the commission, and her desk is located in the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce office in the Main Street Mall.

Miss Cynthia Lynn Smith 913 John St., a senior at Washington Senior High School, has been employed on loan from the Fayette County Community Action Commission to help administer incoming data from bicentennial committee groups and any other interested people volunteering assistance.

Having worked in Fayette County Community Action Commission's outreach program and as an office secretary in both Miami Trace and Washington Senior high schools, Miss Smith is well-acquainted with the necessary procedure required of her new position. Since starting her job on Feb. 6, she has been typing up the minutes of bicentennial meetings, handling incoming calls of inquiry, scheduling bicentennial organizational meetings, and taking care of reservations for the upcoming Fayette County Bicentennial workshop to be held Wednesday.

In addition to her 1 to 4 p.m. duties as the bicentennial commission's secretary, Miss Smith maintains a busy school schedule. Her mornings are occupied by classes in shorthand, office practice, and cooperative office education which last until 11:20 a.m. Though her days are well-filled at present, she hopes to save enough money this summer to buy a horse, allowing her to indulge more fully in her favorite hobby of horseback riding.

CYNTHIA SMITH

In keeping with the spirit that is an integral part of bicentennial efforts, Miss Smith has crocheted and afghan sofa covering colored in the appropriate colors. With the expected offers of volunteer help, and community interest in future events such as the Wednesday workshop, she may have to give up any hopes of becoming the Betsy Ross of the Afghan circuit.

See Miami Valley economic upturn

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — A Wright State University economist has forecast good news for the Miami Valley area.

Dr. Mark Z. Fabrycy, professor of economics, has developed an econometric model which predicts changes in the Dayton economy. He says for the first quarter of 1976, total employment in the area will increase about one per cent. Fabrycy expects a decrease in the size of the labor force by 2.25 per cent and an unemployment rate decrease.

Bloody massacre in Ohio marked at Tuscarawas County

By The Associated Press

The evil as well as the good must be recorded in the pages of Ohio's heritage, and perhaps the darkest page of all was written March 8, 1782, at Gnadenhutten, Tuscarawas County.

The Revolutionary War fighting had ended on the Eastern Seaboard with the victory at Yorktown in the autumn of 1781, but it continued for another bloody year on the Ohio frontier.

In the spring of 1782, settlers along the western borders of Pennsylvania were attacked by roving bands of Ohio Indians. The outposts, enraged by the massacres of the settlers, raised an armed force of Pennsylvanians under Col. David Williamson. The force, made up of raw, undisciplined volunteers, was sent into the wilderness to seek out the raiders and punish them.

For some reason Williamson and his men headed for the innocent, converted Moravian Indians at Gnadenhutten on the Tuscarawas. They found the Christian Indians at work in their fields and after decoying them to the mission settlement, imprisoned them in the Council House. After this they held court and decided by majority vote to execute the entire group. Ninety Indians were killed, including 34 children, and only two boys escaped to warn other Christian Indians at nearby Schoenbrunn.

Said one historian: "The manner in which the unsuspecting Christian Indians were brutally massacred is unequaled in American history; some were speared to death, others shot, some scalped alive, many clubbed and tomahawked."

The total cost of Ohio's old canal system was about $16 million for the 788 miles.

'Red' Ash pushing Canton team to top

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Charles "Red" Ash, one of Ohio's all-time basketball coaching greats, is turning out another Canton South High School winner this season.

Ash's current team, defeated just once in 16 games, has taken over the ninth spot in Class AAA this week in The Associated Press' Ohio scholastic ratings.

The big, likeable Ash ranks second in victories among the state's high school basketball coaches. He has a lifetime record of 639 victories and 162 defeats. Paul Walker of sixthranked Middletown is No. 1 with 786-168.

South was only one of two new schools appearing among the Top Tens compiled from balloting by a statewide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

The other newcomer was Coshocton in Class AA. The Redskins (13-1) now rank 10th in the middle division.

Otherwise, there was little change with Class AAA Canton McKinley, Class AA Delphos St. John and Class A Gnadenhutten Indian Valley South keeping their leads.

None is being pressed. McKinley (17-0), winner of 34 straight regular season games over the last two years, owns a 30-point lead over runnerup Barberton.

St. John (15-0) is 39 points up on No. 2 Warsaw River View. Indian Valley South (16-0) commands a 56-point margin over its closest pursurer, Morral Ridgedale.

Middletown and Cleveland Heights made the biggest advances in Class AAA, the Middies jumping two spots to sixth and Heights leaping two positions to seventh.

Columbus Linden-McKinley, the defending state tournament champion upset at Columbus Whetstone, took the biggest tumble, from seventh to 10th among the large schools. Cleveland St. Ignatius lost its first game to Cleveland LincolnWest, dropping from sixth to eighth.

In Class AA, defeats cost Ironton and Magnolia Sandy Valley. Ironton went from sixth to ninth after bowing for the first time this season to Jackson. Sandy Valley, beaten by Canal Fulton Northwest, fell from ninth to 11h.

In Class A, Cincinnati Lockland continued to advance. Lockland made its first appearance in the Top Ten last week and this week surged from ninth to sixth. Sandusky St. Mary, losing for the second time in 15 games, tumbled all the way from fifth to 10th.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Here's how a statewide panel of sports writers and broadcasters rates Ohio high school basketball teams this week for The Associated Press (10 points for first to 1 point for 10th):

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

Circleville needs only a win tonight over the Hillsboro Indians to insure itself of at least a tie for the South Central Ohio League championship.

Washington C.H., the only other team still in contention for an undisputed league crown, will host Miami Trace, and the Blue Lions will have to avenge an early season rout at the hands of the Panthers to challenge the league leaders.

Unioto will visit Wilmington and Greenfield McClain will travel outside the league to face Leesburg-Fairfield.

CIRCLEVILLE AT HILLSBORO

The Tigers looked anything but sharp Saturday night against Miami Trace, when the Panthers put a scare into the league leaders without the benefit of two of their leading scorers.

Hillsboro's top two scorers, Tim Fuller and Rick Seeling, will be ready to play and the hopes of Washington C.H. are riding with the Indians.

Circleville beat the Indians by nine points earlier this season, but tonight Hillsboro will have the home-court advantage which could make for a close contest.

Tiger center George Moore will be guarding Fuller tonight, and if anyone in the league can hold the Indian pivotman below his 10-point average, its Moore.

This should make 6-3 forward Rick Seeling the player that can make or break the Indians. If he owns a hot hand tonight, an upset is entirely possible.

MIAMI TRACE AT WASHINGTON

The Blue Lions have to win this contest, and despite three key injuries the Panthers will be tough to beat.

Miami Trace completely dominated the first meeting between the Fayette County squads, but that was nearly two months ago. Now, the Blue Lions are playing excellent basketball having won six of their last seven outings with only a two-point overtime loss to Chillicothe breaking the string.

The Panthers will possible be without starters Allan Conner and Rod Garringer while reserve Gary English probably won't dress out for tonights game because of a back injury.

This will definitely hamper the Panther fastbreak offense which was the key weapon against the Blue Lions earlier this season.

The Panther injuries, the homecourt advantage and a shot at the SCOL crown, not to mention the memories of an 83-64 loss earlier this season, should be enough factors to spell a Blue Lion victory.

UNIOTO AT WILMINGTON

Unioto has been on somewhat of a hot streak. The Shermans still haven't won a game this season, but they have been getting close.

There has been less than a ten-point winning margin in each of the Tanks last two games against respectable competition such as Greenfield McClain and Madison Plains.

On the other hand, Wilmington has been on a cold streak losing its last four league contests.

The last time these two teams met it ended in a 15-13 Hurricane victory. It may be close again this time, but Unioto has thrown out the stall which will make the point totals considerably higher.

GREENFIELD AT FAIRFIELD

McClain will definitely have its hands full tonight when they travel to Leesburg. Fairfield is 16-1 on the season—the only loss being in overtime to Hillsboro—and is presently ranked 12th in the Associated Press class A poll.

The Tigers have lost four of their last six league contests and Fairfield isn't the type of team to break out of a slump against.

Germans, Soviets take gold

INNSBRUCK (AP) — The Soviet Union and East Germany, locked in a battle for supremecy of these 12th Winter Olympics, captured one gold medal each today as Russia's Raisa Smetanina won the 10-kilometer (6.2 miles) cross country ski race and East Germans Hans Rinn and Norbert Hahn took the double-seater luge event.

Helena Takalo of Finland, who won a gold medal Saturday in the five-kilometer cross country, took the silver medal at 10-kilometers and Russia's Galina Kulakova, deprived of a medal Monday on a doping charge, won the bronze.

Miss Smetanina, a 24-year-old teacher who finished second in the five-kilometer event, led virtually the entire race and was clocked in 30 minutes, 13.41 seconds. Miss Takalo was timed in 30:14.28 and Mrs. Kulakova, deprived of her bronze in the five-kilometer because she took ephedrine, an illegal drug, to combat a cold the night before the race, clocked 30:38.61.

Rinn and Hahn clocked a track record of 42.77 seconds on their first of two runs down the 870-meter run for an aggregate time of 1:25.60. Hans Bradner and Balthasar Schwarm of West Germany won the silver medal in 1:25.88 and Rudolf Schmid and Franz Schachner of Austria won the bronze in 1:25.91.

The results left the powerful Soviets atop the medal standings with nine gold medals and 18 over-all, followed by the East Germans with six gold and 13 total medals and the upstart Americans with a gold, three silver and three bronze.

Today's competition also included completion of the men's giant slalom and the 500-meter speed skating event.

U.S. takes skate medal

INNSBRUCK (AP) — Evgeniy Kulikov of the Soviet Union won the gold medal in the 500 meter men's speed skating event in the 12th Winter Olympic Games today.

Valeriy Muratov of Russia won the silver medal and Dan Immerfall of Madison, Wis., was third, winning the bronze medal.

Mats Wallberg of Sweden placed fourth and Peter Mueller of Mequon, Wis., who had high hopes of a gold medal in this event, finished fifth.

Kulikov's winning time was 39.17 seconds followed by Muratov's 39.25 and Immerfall's 39.54.

Hoosiers trounce Michigan State

By The Associated Press

Indiana center Kent Benson is the kind of player coaches drool over.

He stands 6 feet 11, weighs a muscular 235 pounds. He's intimidating under the boards, mobile enough for any running game and as good a jump shooter as most forwards. Defensively, he's learning to hold his own at the Bobby Knight school of man-to-man combat, as fine a proving ground as you'll find anywhere.

He comes up with the clutch play, like the spectacular tap-in at the buzzer against Michigan Saturday which kept Indiana's unbeaten streak alive. He's improved steadily year by year, to the point where he's now the equal of any big man in the college ranks.

And his attitude? A chapter president of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Benson sounds more like a coach than a player.

"I just go out and try to play hard night in and night out," Benson said Monday night after scoring a career-high 38 points to lead unbeaten, top-ranked Indiana to its 20th victory of the season, an 85-70 Big Ten triumph over Michigan State.

Benson and his Hoosier mates have got a pretty powerful juggernaut on the move — 20-0 overall, 11-0 in the Big Ten, 30 straight conference victories and 50 consecutive regular season triumphs.

Benson's performance overshadowed a 40-point effort by Terry Furlow, the Michigan State forward who leads the Big Ten in scoring. The Indiana center was nearly unstoppable against the smaller Spartans, especially in the second half after three Michgian State starters fouled out.

Indiana went ahead to stay with an 11-2 spurt for a 33-28 advantage. The Hoosiers led by nine at the half and then drew away.

In other games involving Top Twenty teams, No. 5 Rutgers beat Delaware 110-87, No. 8 Tennessee defeated Vanderbilt 73-59, No. 10 Notre Dame topped St. Bonaventure 95-80, No. 11 Alabama edged Florida 79-73, No. 16 Michigan beat Ohio State 90-66 and No. 19 North Texas State was upset by Memphis State 111-93.

Rutgers remained undefeated by routing Delaware for its 20th triumph of the season, reaching 100 points for the eighth time. Hollis Copeland and Phil Sellers were the big guns for the winners, Copeland scoring 22 points and pulling down 11 rebounds and Sellers adding 17 points, 18 rebounds and nine assists.

Indiana easily leads cage poll

By The Associated Press

Unbeaten Indiana received all but one first-place ballot and remained the overwhelming leader in this week's Associated Press college basketball poll. The lone dissenter cast his No. 1 vote for Rutgers, one of the nation's two other major undefeated teams.

Indiana and Rutgers both raised their season records to 20-0 with victories Monday night, Indiana beating Big Ten rival Michigan State 85-70 and Rutgers routing outmanned Delaware 110-87.

This week's poll, however, was based on games played through Sunday. In last week's action, Indiana pulled out a 72-67 overtime victory over Michigan while Rutgers posted triumphs over Princeton, West Virginia and Navy.

The nation's only other major unbeaten club, Western Michigan at 18-0, moved up two spots in the latest ratings to No. 15.

Indiana headed the list with 1,278 points on 63 first-place votes and one second from the nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Marquette, 18-1 after beating Manhattan 78-59 and Detroit 68-66 last week, remained far back in second place with 1,093 points. North Carolina, 18-2 and Maryland, 17-3, moved up one place each to third and fourth, respectively, and Rutgers climbed from seventh to fifth.

Nevada-Las Vegas, third last week, dropped down to No. 7 after suffering its first loss of the season, at the hands of Pepperdine by a 93-91 score Friday night.

North Carolina received 950 points, Maryland 772 and Rutgers 756.

UCLA climbed from ninth place to sixth after upsetting Washington, which had been No. 6 last week but dropped down to No. 9. Nevada-Las Vegas was seventh, followed by Tennessee, eighth last week; Washington, and Notre Dame, 11th last week.

Alabama headed the Second Ten, followed by North Carolina State, Cincinnati, Missouri, Western Michigan, Michigan, St. John's, Virginia Tech and Centenary and North Texas State, tied for 19th.

Michigan is the lone newcomer to the list following its impressive showing against powerful Indiana, with Princeton — No. 15 last week — dropping off after losing to Rutgers 75-62.

Bill curbs pupil data

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Information about school pupils could not be released without parents' consent under a bill approved 26-1 Monday night by the Senate.

Among its provisions, a special section prohibits giving out such information that could provide mailing lists for any person or group "for use in a profit-making plan or activity."

Sen. M. Ben Gaeth, R-1 Defiance, opposed it, he said, because the bill could keep information about disciplinary actions away from potential employers.

In other action as the Senate held a brief floor session opening this week's legislative activities, senators sent the House 25-0 a proposed constitutional amendment clarifying certification procedures for statewide election results.

If approved by the House, the amendment would go on the November ballot, according to its chief sponsor, Sen. Gene Slagle, D-26 Galion.

The House returned from weekend recess today.

Angola war continues

By The Associated Press

Soviet-backed Angolan and Cuban forces are making drives toward Luso, in east central Angola, and south along the coast to the ports of Lobito and Benguela following capture of Huambo, the capital of the two Western-supported factions in the Angolan civil war, a British correspondent reported today from Luanda.

If the two-prong advance is successful, "there appears a strong likelihood that the FNLA-UNITA forces inside Angola will collapse," Jane Bergerol of the London Financial Times reported.

The warring factions are the Popular Movement, or MPLA, which is armed by the Soviet Union and has an estimated 11,000 Cubans fighting for it, and the National Union (UNITA) and National Front (FNLA), which have been supplied by the United States, South Africa, Zaire and Zambia and have several hundred European mercenaries fighting for them.

Nicholas Ashford of the Times of London, who left Angola this week and went to Johannesburg, reported that South African forces which pulled back from central Angola recently are establishing a defense line against the MPLA about 30 miles inside the former Portuguese territory.

He said South Africa is believed to have about 5,000 men in the area.

Hepatitis continues

Cincinnati Health Commissioner Dr. Arnold Leff reported the number of cases has increased at the school to 17 with three more reported over the weekend.

"I believe that all of the children were infected at the same time," Leff said, adding that the incubation period of the liver ailment is 2-6 weeks.

Cause of the outbreak remains unknown, Leff said.

Meanwhile, Leff said, there is little anyone can do except comply with basic cleanliness measures at the school. Families of the infected children were given injections against the disease, he said.

The water system was given a clean bill of health, he said.

When Glamor Goes to your Head

Here's How

When You Ponder Buying Land

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Is it a mistake to put the entire savings into land until you can afford to build a house, even though it may be years away?

That question asked by a young couple gets a variety of answers from people who have bought land on a similar basis.

But they agree that the answer depends entirely on why you want the land now and when you can afford to build the house.

If land is a good investment and can be unloaded easily if you decide not to build, fine.

If it was a bargain and gives satisfactory meanwhile use — camping, bird watching or whatever or if it is in a location that you must be in where land is scarce — why not.

If you can afford to build on it within a reasonable time, great.

Those are good reasons to buy the land, but there are a lot of drawbacks to owning it if it is just bought to hold until you can afford to build many years from now, even if the taxes are low, these knowledgeable people point out.

For one thing, it is expensive to build a house even if you do it yourself. In an inflationary period how long would it take to raise the money for the house?

Land is often bought because it is cheap and has conservation-appeal but young people forget they are going to use it as a house site, too. Then they perhaps need to remove trees, build a road, connect electricity and so on. The land may be in a remote area with a beautiful view, uncontaminated air, pure water. But to get your money's worth, a house may be needed.

A swamp, marsh or pond may be an environmental asset attracting birds, waterfowl, little animals, but the big consideration must be: is there a good site for the house? If it must be placed far from these attractions so that they will not be seen, it may not fulfill the aim of a bucolic view after all.

Towns are eyeing marshes, swamps and other watering spots. Whereas formerly they leveled some of these natural wonders into parking lots, they are now trying to protect them, they say. This means that land purchased for building may be subjected to scrutiny as town fathers decide whether the house and its septic system and so on will be detrimental to that choice environment. What prevails when the land is bought really may be no indication of how a town acts tomorrow. Laws are being enacted every day.

Most people agree, too, that land prices have remained status quo — there are few bargains unless there are some drawbacks. If there is a great deal of acreage the house no doubt will be away from all conveniences, including good rail transportation.

Some young people have made wise investments, holding out for some kind of little house to go with land. One couple managed to get an early dwelling in disrepair. They remodeled it and used it as a meanwhile house. After five years they can afford to build a small house on two other acres of the land and already have a buyer for the old house they've made livable. This is an ideal investment that takes careful planning. They did make some sacrifices, but they had something to build their dreams on and their project was debt-controlled.

If two people have scrimped for a long time to own a home, chances are they will not be satisfied indefinitely owning the land without a house. Then, too, if they find a home they like and wish to abandon the land, they will need to find a buyer, perhaps quickly. It may not be easy.

That may even be the main consideration in buying the land: could you sell it if you wanted to? One good indication might be to inquire how long it has been on the market.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — Every time I paint — and I'll be doing it again soon — the paint collects in the small rim around the top of the can. I try to get it out by dipping a small brush in it and then wiping it on an old newspaper. It never quite succeeds, because when I go to use the paint again weeks or months later, I find that some of the paint in the rim has hardened and that the cover never was really on tight enough. Is there some easier and better way to handle this?

A. — When you first open the can, punch holes into the rim. This has to be done very carefully so that you don't knock over the can. Some persons find it helpful to pour out some of the paint before doing this. The holes can be punched with a hammer and a nailset or some other pointed tool that will go through metal without too much trouble. As you work, the paint that collects in the rim will fall through the holes and return to the can. Then, if there are a few drops still in the rim, remove them the way you have always done.

Q. — I understand that it is possible to make flagstones for a walkway without buying the ready-made stones. Can you tell me how this is done?

A. — What you actually will be making are concrete stones that can be used for walking on. Dig to about 4 inches. The size and shape of the stone depends on your preference, but make sure the excavation is level. Pour in a concrete mix and level it off with a wooden float. Repeat this operation as many times as necessary to complete the walkway. There's no need to try to make all the stones the same size; in fact, variations will make the walkway more interesting. After about five or six hours, wet down each stone. Do this a couple of times a day for several days. This "curing" process will keep the concrete from drying out too quickly.

Q. — One of your readers asked about marbleizing wood furniture. I have discovered an easy method. Brush on the antiquing glaze as usual. Lay a large piece of plastic, such as a laundry bag, over the entire surface to be marbleized. Pick it up. Presto — a marble finish. If not satisfied with the first attempt, brush the glaze out and keep at it until you have the finish desired. You can even try squishing the plastic around gently with your finger tips.

A. — Thanks.

Adhesions After Surgery?

Mrs. B.A., S.C.

Dear Mrs. A.:

Adhesions are small bands of firm, fibrous tissue. These bands can occur after surgery anywhere within the abdomen.

Infection or inflammation of the thin lining that surrounds the abdominal cavity is sometimes followed by adhesions.

Adhesions do not always follow abdominal surgery. Some people seem to be more prone to adhesions than others. The delicacy with which surgery is performed today is the major reason why adhesions occur so much less frequently than they formerly did.

The only time that adhesions present a problem is when they surround a portion of the intestinal tract and interfere with its normal function.

Basically, however, adhesions that produce no symptoms are rarely dangerous.

Mr. T.B.V., Mich.

Dear Mr. V.:

The teeth, the gums, the sinuses, the tonsils, the appendix and the gall bladder may harbor bacteria.

Sometimes these germs may enter the bloodstream, travel to a distant part of the body, and implant themselves in an organ.

Those doctors who subscribe to the theory of "focus of infection" believe that some forms of arthritis, bladder infections and kidney disease may be explained in this way.

Whether or not one "believes" in this theory is not nearly as important as what one should do about it. For it is undeniable that infection anywhere in the body should be treated and eliminated.

Miss L.K., Calif.

Dear Miss K.:

It is a misconception to believe that excess weight and fat beneath the skin can be eliminated by rubbing and massage.

It is true that massage can give one an invigorating feeling and better muscle tone. But do not delude yourself into believing that this is a reducing technique. Despite the many new ideas that appeal to those anxious to lose weight, a single law is undeniable:

Opening lead - king of diamonds.

Let's assume you're in seven hearts and West leads a diamond. There seems to be nothing much to play and, if you are endowed with a happy-go-lucky nature, you win the diamond with the ace and play the A-K of trumps. West shows out and you go down one, losing a trump trick to East.

You can of course attribute the outcome to bad luck, since the odds were about 3 to 1 against losing a trump trick by this method of play. But if you consider the matter more objectively, it turns out that you should have made the contract by adopting a slightly different line of play.

Instead of playing a trump at trick two — which seems a normal thing to do — it is better to ruff a diamond and then play the A-K of trumps.

When you learn of the 4-1 trump division, you can now take steps to try to eliminate East's seemingly certain trump trick. You stop playing trumps and instead cash the A-K of clubs, lead a spade to the jack, ruff a diamond, then play a spade to the queen and ruff a club.

As a result of this series of maneuvers, your last three cards are the king of spades and Q-10 of trumps. Dummy has the ace of spades, a diamond and a club; East has the nine of spades and J-4 of trumps.

When you play a spade to the ace and lead a diamond or a club from dummy, East's J-4 of trumps succumb to your Q-10.

The success of this method of play can be traced back to the farsighted play of ruffing a diamond at trick two to allow for the possibility that East might have been dealt four trumps to the jack. If you don't take this ruff, you wind up leading from your hand instead of dummy at trick twelve.

Man finally gets medal from war

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — A medal earned while flying combat missions with the 14th Air Force over China more than 30 years ago has finally been picked up by a Mansfield man.

Since his 1945 discharge Robert E. Luman had been trying to track down the headquarters of the 14th Air Force Association, composed of China-Burma-India Theater veterans of World War II.

Luman finally got in contact with the organization through a newspaper article sent him by his sister in Zanesville. The story not only provided the whereabouts of the organization but revealed the existence of a medal he did not know he had qualified for.

The award—the China War Memorial Medal—has become better known as the "lost decoration" of World War II. It was authorized by the Chinese government near the end of the war, but the rush to return home apparently jumbled the records of those who were to receive it.

Some veterans had notations in their service records listing the award, but none had ever seen it.

Last year, after persistent research by the veterans organization, the medals were distributed to many Americans. Luman learned of his eligibility through the newspaper article.

Now a sales engineer for Ohio Brass Co., the Zanesville native adds the Chinese medal to the list of awards he earned, including the Flying Cross.

He plans to attend annual conventions of the association, although he said he'll skip this year's get-together which is in Taiwan.

Gunman slays American

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A gunman shot and killed an American owner of two bars on Bangkok's main entertainment strip over the weekend.

Police said Clifford Stroup, owner of the Cloud Nine and Texan bars on Patpong Road, was struck by a hail of bullets Sunday while he and two female companions were watching a movie at a private residence. One of his companions was slightly wounded.

The motive of the killing was not known but police said they suspected it might have been linked with his business or a love affair.

Stroup, 42, was originally from Stow, Ohio. He had lived in Thailand for several years.

Eye job action against state

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Officials of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes from around Ohio were seeking to set a meeting date for consideration of "a severe job action against the state...," an AFSCME statement said.

William E. Garnes, AFSCME area director, said the preparations had been provoked by refusal of the department of mental health and mental retardation to recognize a need for problem solving mechanisms at some state institutions.

Garnes said by problems he meant disregard for employes.

A meeting with Moritz has been scheduled for Wednesday and probably would be held before state AFSCME heads gather, he added.

The cornerstone of Ohio's Statehouse was put in place July 4, 1839. The building was completed 20 years later.

Well, you couldn't ask for better picture weather than we had last week with the ice covering everything in such a way that the lights at night were reflected in the streets, the trees, even sides of buildings, creating a fantasy world that seemed to be just made for the alert cameraman. Of course, every time of year has its good and bad photographic situations, but last week was something else.

Last week in this space we were on the subject of photo textbooks. There's one excellent book I left out that should be mentioned. The author has done everything he could to make it fun reading and not textbookish, but none the less it's packed with good, sound photographic information. The title, UNDERSTANDING PHOTOGRAPHY, the author, Carl Shipman, the price is $5.95 in paperback.

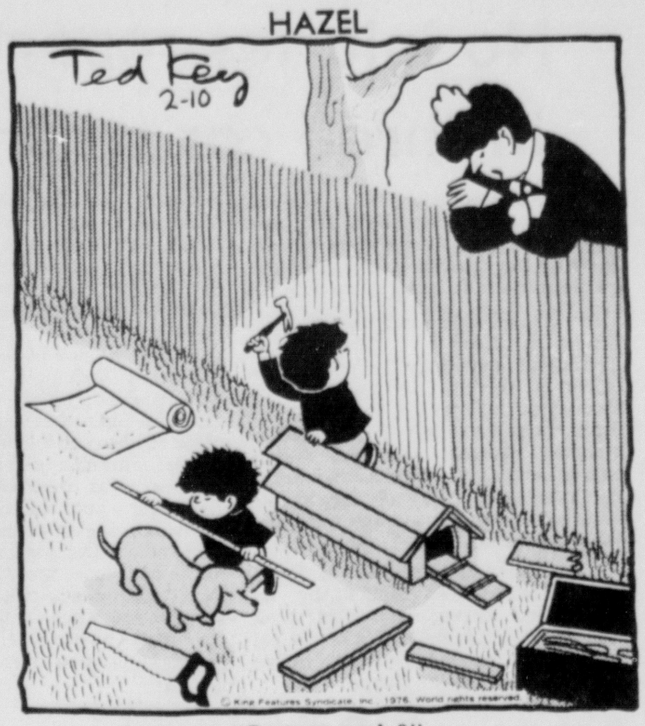

Want to know something? If you haven't tuned in to this guy Alan Stang who has the ALAN STANG REPORT each morning at 8 on WCHO, wise up and listen. Our book department has sold more books and pamphlets by Stang than any other author. Stans is probably the sharpest investigative reporter in American today. We're lucky to get a speaker like Stang to come here to Washington. He'll be speaking on PROGRESSIVE EDUCATION: A DANGER TO YOUR CHILD. The time: Tuesday, March 2, 8 p.m. The place: Eastside School Gymnasium. Tickets are $1.50 and you can get them at the camera shop as well as several other places on Court Street. If you have children in school you won't want to miss this talk.

No injuries reported in three car crashes

A rear-end collision and a hit-skip accident were reported by Washington C. H. police today. The Fayette County Sheriff's Department investigated one traffic mishap Tuesday morning.

A rear-end collision involving cars driven by Danny A. Mongold, 18, Greenfield, and Ricky L. Curnette, 21, of 1103 S. Elm St., occurred at 8 p.m. Monday at the intersection of Elm and John streets. City police stated Mongold reached down to change citizen band radio channels and struck the Curnette auto. He was charged with failure to maintain an assured clear distance ahead.

A car belonging to Glen A. Park, Reynoldsburg, was struck by an unidentified driver at 10:09 p.m. Monday while parked in the municipal parking lot on Main Street. Police estimated damage as minor.

A car driven by Lisa M. Blair, 17, Milledgeville, was involved in an accident at 7:50 a.m. Tuesday on Bloomingburg-New Holland Road, just east of the Bush Road intersection. Fayette County Sheriff's deputies reported Ms. Blair attempted to pass two vehicles, one of them being a car driven by Rodney L. Garringer, 18, Jeffersonville, which started to pass also. Ms. Blair swerved off the left side of the roadway and struck a culvert and culvert marker and then spun around. Her car was moderately damaged. Garringer's auto was not damaged for the two cars never came in contact with each other. Deputies reported no injuries and stated the Washington C. H. Fire Department was summoned to the scene to stand by in case gasoline from the Blair car's ruptured gas tank presented a fire hazard. It did not ignite.

American Party back on ballot

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The American Party has unofficially returned to Ohio's election ballot after being disqualified in 1972 for not receiving enough votes.

Official recognition will not come for about two weeks, after signatures have been verified. However, the petitions contained 7,334 more signatures than were required, apparently enough to compensate for any invalid signatures.

Cleveland attorney Arthur Cain delivered the petitions to Brown's office on Monday afternoon, only 1½ hours before the deadline for filing them. He was accompanied by party supporters wearing red, white and blue buttons reading, "The Tide is Turning."

Cain said the party probably will run between four and seven congressional candidates and will work for the American Independence party candidate for president.

The national candidate will be chosen in a national convention in July, he said. An August state convention will make the final selections of state party candidates, he said.

The national party was begun in 1968 by Alabama Gov. George Wallace when he made his first third-party bid for the presidency. In 1972, however, the party was badly hurt when Wallace was forced to withdraw from the presidential race after an assassination attempt which left him crippled.

Shoplift charge filed

A 16-year-old Wilmington boy was arrested by Fayette County Sheriff's deputies and charged with shoplifting Monday afternoon

Deputies reported the youth attempted to steal one package of chrome wheel locks valued at $5.01 and two packages of chrome wheel nuts valued at $3.54 from Seaway, CCC-Highway-W. The boy allegedly concealed the merchandise in his pocket and left the store without paying for it. The youth has been released to his parents.

Robin A. Cotton, 10, of 1203 Willard St., was bitten in the back by a dog at 7:10 p.m. Monday while playing on Center Street. She was treated and released at Fayette Memorial Hospital, Washington C.H. police reported today.

Showers may linger over southern Ohio Wednesday, but clear skies are in store for the remainder of the state.

The showers were forecast to began in northern Ohio Tuesday afternoon ahead of a cold front moving rapidly southward across the state.

The mercury soared into the upper 50s and low 60s in southern Ohio Tuesday. It was chillier in the northern counties where readings remained in the mid 30s and 40s.

Temperatures will be cooler Wednesday with highs ranging from the upper 30s north to the upper 40s south.

Fair Thursday, a chance of rain or snow Friday and Saturday. Highs 35 to 55. Lows in the upper teens and the 20s.

Prayer breakfast draws 35 persons

Thirty-five persons attended the teen prayer breakfast at the South Side Church of Christ Tuesday morning.

"A Walk Through the Biblical Gardens" was the topic used by the Rev. Charles J. Richmond for the meditation time. Diana Davis and Lisa Rinehart, sophomores at Washington Senior High School, led the singing accompanied by Marilyn Creamer, a junior at Miami Trace High School.

Following the breakfast, prepared by Francis Starkey, Lavonne Creamer, Viva Johnson, and Mary Ann Rudduck, John Fields, a junior at Washington Senior High School, spoke to the group on "Being Humble." Linda Hollingsworth, a senior at Washington Senior High School, closed the session with prayer.

The next prayer breakfast will be held Tuesday, Feb. 24 at 6:45 a.m. There'll be no prayer breakfast next Tuesday.

All teens, grades nine through twelve, are welcome.

Holland's royalty in trouble?

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (AP) — The charge that Prince Bernhard got $1.1 million to influence the Dutch government to buy Lockheed planes is the fourth major furor to hit the House of Orange since Queen Juliana came to the throne in 1948.

The extent of Juliana's fortune has never been officially disclosed, but an unofficial estimate in the late 1960's indicated her bank balance then was around $100 million.

In addition, she has sizable holdings in the giant Royal Dutch Shell oil company, the Algemene Bank Nederland, the country's largest commercial bank, and other major Dutch companies.

One financial expert said her private fortune must be "huge."

The first big scandal in her reign came in the 1950's, when she and Bernhard turned to a faith healer, Greet Hofmans, in the hope that she could help their partially blind youngest daughter, Princess Christina.

Miss Hofmans became the queen's confidante, was reported advising her on matters of state and was dubbed the Rasputin of the Dutch court. Bernhard objected, and there were rumors of divorce and abdication. Unconfirmed reports said Juliana and her husband lived in separate wings of Soestdijk Palace for six months, communicating only by notes.

The crisis ended in 1956 with a statement from the royal couple that they had resolved their differences and "look forward to the future with confidence." Bernhard banned Miss Hofmans from the palace, and Princess Christina's sight improved under conventional treatment.

The next bombshell came in 1964 when Princess Irene, the couple's second daughter, became a Roman Catholic to marry the Carlist pretender to the Spanish throne, Prince Hugo Carlos of Bourbon-Parma. The Protestant Dutch were shocked.

Irene renounced her rights to the Dutch throne and was married in Rome. Her parents stayed home and watched the ceremony on television.

Public opposition was aroused by another royal romance in 1966 when Crown Princess Beatrix became engaged to a West German diplomat, Claus von Amsberg. Objections were voiced to his teen-age membership in Nazi youth and labor organizations during the war, and there were smoke bombs and hostile demonstrations outside the church during the wedding ceremony in Amsterdam.

The hostility evaporated the next year when Beatrix gave birth to a son, the first Prince of Orange in the line of succession since 1884.

The earlier crises did no damage to the popularity of the queen and her husband and the widespread affection for her. The effect of the Lockheed scandal depends on the investigation which the government has promised. Bernhard, denying he received any money, said he welcomed a full inquiry.

The population in Ohio in 1790 was 3,000; in 1800 it was 45,365; in 1810 it was 230,760, and in 1880 3,198,062, of which 2,803,114 were natives of the state. In 1880 79,900 residents were black.

Washington: first in war and peace

When the news of George Washington's death on December 19, 1799 was received, Congress adopted a resolution honoring him, ending with these now-famous words:

"A citizen first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

George Wasington was indeed a first citizen to the young country that he led to victory against the British and later led as its first president.

The greatness of this early American was not immediately apparent in his life. The son of a Virginia landowner, Washington received erratic schooling, his chief education being in the management of his father's holdings. He learned the elements of surveying at an early age; he was able to plot and measure neighboring fields by the age of 14.

He became a surveyor by profession and it was through his surveying trips, carrying him into the wilderness, that his character was further formed, as he developed the resourcefulness and endurance necessary to surmount the rugged journeys.

At 20, he inherited Mount Vernon and spent most of the next 20 years living the life of a prosperous plantation manager, in addition to being a military adjutant.

As time went on, Washington became more and more active in the military, being made commander of Virginia's troops in 1755, at the age of 23. However, he resigned his commission in 1758, just before his marriage to Martha Dandridge Custis, and aside from being a member of the house of burgesses, Washington lived in the manner of a landowner in the ensuing years.

Even though he belonged to the house of burgesses, Washington displayed little interest in affairs of state. But in May of 1765, Patrick Henry introduced resolutions against the, Stamp Act, after which Washington took the side of the Whigs, the colonists opposing British injustices.

He was elected to the first Continental Congress by his fellow Virginians, and when the Congress met in Philadelphia in 1774, Washington was dressed in full uniform; indicating his attitude toward further attempts at petitioning the Crown — to a previous revolutionary legislature he had declared, "I will raise one thousand men, subsist them at my own expense, and march myself at their head for the relief of Boston."

Despite this rhetoric, Washington was first opposed to independence, but he was just as determined not to submit to loss of what he termed "valuable rights and privileges."

Called upon by Congress to take charge of the military forces of all the colonies, Washington took command on July 2, 1775 of a motley group of Yankees. His success in forging that undisciplined band into a victorious army that defeated the British at Yorktown in 1781 is a measure of his greatness.

His duty done, Washington expected to retire once again to his Mount Vernon home. But his valiant and brilliant leadership throughout the war years made him the unanimous choice of the electors in peace, and Washington became the first American president on April 30, 1789.

I regret that I have but one life to lose for my country.

Early American leaders saw cotton as route to economic independence

A number of early American leaders recognized that cotton could be an important factor in achieving the economic independence so essential to supporting this country's political freedom.

In 1776 when the British House of Commons was considering repeal of the Stamp Act and questioned whether American colonists could clothe themselves without aid from England, Benjamin Franklin said Virginians could "very well clothe themselves with linen and cotton of their own raising for the rest of the year."

The National Cotton Council points out that, largely due to Franklin's influence, a calico printworks was established near Philadelphia in 1772. It was under the direction of John Hewson, who later fought in the Revolution.

Martha Washington personally visited the factory and ordered some special prints to which her husband George later pointed with pride. Washington had established a weaving house at Mount Vernon as early as 1767 and the cloth made there for about 25 neighboring families included 300 yards of cotton.

Alexander Hamilton, who was born on a West Indies cotton plantation and became the nation's first treasury secretary, believed cotton could be a profitable commercial crop for America and worked to promote its introduction.

In 1774, he predicted that several of the Southern colonies might one day clothe the whole continent. And by the following year, the crop's production was sufficient to lead Hamilton to suggest that cotton factories be placed alongside the cottonfields.

Thomas Jefferson wrote in 1786 that the four southern-most states were making a great deal of homespun cotton which he described as being "as well manufactured as the calicoes of Europe." And that same year, James Madison declared there was "no reason to doubt that the United States will one day become a great cotton-producing country."

Tench Coxe, a Philadelphian who was a delegate to the Continental Congress and later Assistant Secretary of the U.S. Treasury, did much to encourage cotton's cultivation and its manufacture. In 1786 he interested planters of five southern states in cotton cultivation.

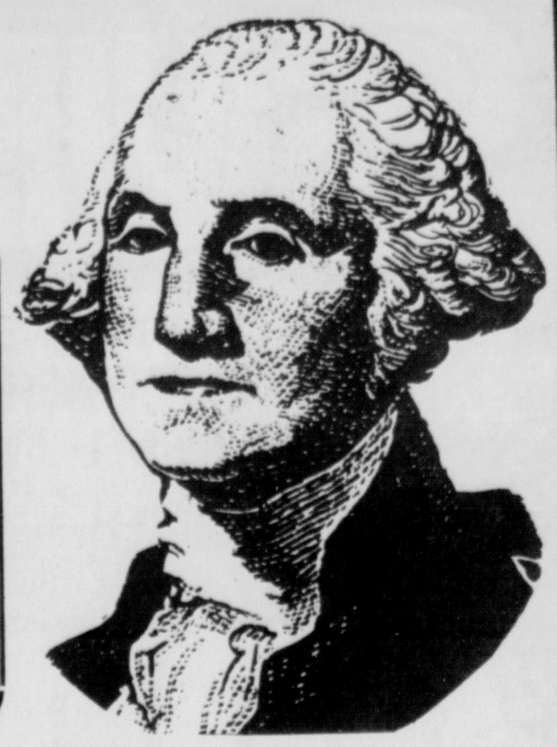

Coxe also operated the nation's first spinning jenny at a plant in Philadelphia which employed 400 women in the spinning and weaving of cotton. He is said to have "emptied his pockets" to import English textile machinery and laborers to run the equipment. Largely at Coxe's urging, Congress imposed a duty of three cents a pound on cotton imports in 1789.

ABE LINCOLN AT GETTYSBURG

"Four Score and seven years ago, our fathers brought forth upon this continent, a new nation, conceived in Liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived, and so dedicated, can long endure.

We are met on a great battle-field of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of it, as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that this nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But in a larger sense we cannot dedicate-we cannot consecrate-we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they have, thus far, so nobly advanced. It's rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us-that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they here gave the last full measure of devotion-that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation under god shall have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people, for the prople, shall not perish from the earth."

That was all. One observer noted that "Lincoln had finished almost before he began;; such was the brevity of his speech. The applause for the President was late and somewhat scattered. Several photographers who had expected him to speak longer were caught still preparing their equipment.

Reactions to the President's speech varied widely both among those present and in the newspaper accounts. Most of the leading newspapers of the time published it but did not seem too greatly impressed. Editorial comment generally depended on how the particular commentator felt about Lincoln and the War. Few grasp the true meaning of the words.

Time and Lincoln's subsequent martyrdom have done more than anything else to immortalize what he said on that November day. In less than 500 words Lincoln spoke not only for his own time, but for the future as well. The nation's strength lay in a continuing rededication to the principles and ideals upon which it was founded. In a larger sense Lincoln's message was universal in that democracy contained the best hope for all mankind. No one realized it in November 1863, but he was speaking for the ages.

Who'd want to invest in a bunch of revolutionaries?

They didn't exactly look like winners.

But then our revolutionary army beat the British at Saratoga in 1777.

So faith was won as well as a battle. And investments in our government's securities started picking up.

It took courage to take stock in America back then. But it paid off.

And it can do the same for you now.

Those brave revolutionaries would be proud.

Series E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4½% the first year). Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.

An American pilgrimage

Covered wagons will tour each of the 50 states and meet in Valley Forge, Pennsylvania on July 3, 1976.

Americans from all states and walks of life are taking part in the pilgrimage. Many are riding with one of the five wagon train segments, while others are becoming involved in the wagon encampment activities, which include a special Bicentennial musical show.

Another way for people to participate in the pilgrimage is through the scroll program: by signing a scroll pledging to rededicate themselves to the principles upon which our nation was founded.

The pilgrimage's official outfitter is Wrangler, leading maker of jeans and sportswear, which is providing retailers copies of the Rededication Scrolls for customers to sign. As the official wagon of each state tours that state, outriders will collect the signed documents. The scrolls are presented to the wagonmaster at each encampment, and the wagon train will deliver them all to Valley Forge.

Under exclusive licensing agreement, granted through the State of Pennsylvania Bicentennial Commission, Wrangler is also offering a special group of official Bicentennial Wagon Train apparel. This includes men's, women's and boys' jean-jacket outfits in denim, corduroy and a leather look, and Wrangler boots in the latest Western fashion designs.

The pilgrimage, which is supported by the American Revolution Bicentennial Committee, the Bicentennial Commission of Pennsylvania and the North American Trail Ride Conference is expected to serve as a cohesive thread for the Bicentennial, and it is hoped it will reach out to all people as an exciting adventure in the spirit of the pioneers.

Measure would curb inflationary increases

House approval eyed on property tax bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A property tax relief bill headed onto the floor of the Ohio House today with approval expected, but with a flurry of political side issues vying for more attention.

GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes late Monday fanned the flames of a growing controversy that stems from his bid to draw new Senate and House districts, apparently to try to topple the current Democratic leadership.

Otherwise, a floor debate was scheduled in the Senate during an unusual morning session of that body on two controversial appointments by Rhodes to the State Racing Commission.

The Senate Ways and Means Committee recommended last week against the confirmation of Commission Chairman Joseph J. LoPresti of Cleveland. Rhodes' appointment of Mel J. Witt, also of Cleveland, was up for a committee roll call prior to the floor session. A 2-2 roll call Monday night was left open until today because of the absence of five committee members.

LoPresti, a former judge, and Witt, a union official, were questioned at their separate confirmation hearings about thousands of free race track passes distributed annually by the commission and staff.

They said, in response to specific questions, that many of the requests for passes came from state lawmakers, although Witt said he "took care of my friends and associates," the same as other commissioners had done in the past.

Rep. John E. Johnson, D-68 Orrville, and other sponsors predicted House approval of his measure that would give Ohio's homeowners credits on their tax bills when inflationary increases in property values have boosted their tax liabilities.

The bill offers no relief this year for taxpayers now paying or being billed for 1975 property taxes but holds the promise of about $70 million worth of tax relief statewide next year, Johnson said. Ohioans currently shell out about $1 billion a year in property taxes.

Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, said he planned to call a caucus of his 21-member Democratic majority this afternoon to discuss a major measure giving Ohio a new law for acting on consumer rate requests by the state's public utilities.

"If all goes well, we will put the measure up for a vote in the Senate on Wednesday," said Ocasek. He is proponent of the legislation which is designed to check the growth of future rate increases by electric, gas, telephone, and other utilities that are regulated by Ohio's Public Service Commission.

Remap board meet set Feb. 23

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — At least one of the two Democrats on the Republican-controlled apportionment board plans to attend Feb. 23 when GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes convenes the panel in a precarious legal bid to draw new districts for the legislature.

Veteran Sen. Anthony O. Calabrese, D-22 Cleveland, said Monday night, "Of course, I'm going. He (Rhodes) is the governor of this state."

Calabrese added, however, amid speculation Rhodes could have his plan wired ahead of time, "He's got something up his sleeve. He knows something."

Some Democrats, including Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, maintain Rhodes has no authority to call the five-member board into session. In fact, those Democrats maintain that it doesn't exist except during its function to reapportion the legislature after each federal census.

Rhodes, in his formal call for a meeting, asserted Monday night he is bound by the law to reconvene the board if it is found that existing districts are invalid.

The governor said the present districts violate the Ohio Constitution with several defeats, notwithstanding the fact that a federal judge in 1973 issued an injunction prohibiting all parties in earlier court battles from seeking further litigation in state or federal courts. Rhodes must be careful not to violate that injunction, Democratic legal spokesmen say.

Ocasek noted that the same federal judge, Chief Judge Frank J. Battisti of the northern Ohio U.S. District Court, a Democrat, held that the districts comply with the U.S. Constitution. With regard to whether they comply with state requirements, Ocasek reiterated, "It's been done. It's over with. Besides, it's not up to Jim Rhodes to say what is constitutional."

Rhodes sent letters of formal notice of the meeting to Republican Secretary of State Ted W. Brown, Rep. Frederick N. Young, R-38 Dayton — who along with the governor comprise the majority — to Calabrese and Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson. The auditor wasn't available for comment.

Young is a new addition to the board — if in fact it is being legally convened. He was named by Minority Republican leaders to replace former Rep. Robert A. Manning of Akron, a Republican who no longer is a member of the House.

Manning sat as a minority member when Democrats, under former Gov. John J. Gilligan, drew the existing Senate and House districts in 1971. That plan led to recapture of legislative control (59-40 in the House and 21-12 in the Senate) from Republicans who had held it 16 years.

Bentsen scales down plans after defeats in 2 states

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, hurt in two early candidate tests, is scaling down his national presidential campaign to a favorite son candidacy to guarantee that Texas has a voice at the Democratic National Convention, campaign officials say.

The Texan, who hoped to build momentum with early victories but suffered setbacks instead in Mississippi and Oklahoma, was expected to announce his plans at a press conference today in Austin, one day before his 55th birthday and a week before the first anniversary of his candidacy.

A favorite-son campaign would mean that he would halt his national campaign but would run in the Texas Democratic primary on May 1.

Meanwhile, Republican Ronald Reagan campaigned in New Hampshire, stressing his differences with administration policies, after President Ford made a weekend swing through the state. New Hampshire's primary, the first in the nation, is two weeks from today.

After Bentsen came out of the Mississippi caucuses Jan. 24 with less than 2 per cent of the delegats, sources close to him said if he did not do well in Oklahoma last Saturday, he would be forced to drop out. After ending up in third place among four candidates with less than 12 per cent in Oklahoma, Bentsen has been evaluating his political future during a campaign break at his Texas home.

Project to save $100,000 over 10 years

City to upgrade streets through federal funding

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald Staff Writer

Thanks to a federally-funded project, Washington C.H. will be able to upgrade city streets while saving an estimated $100,000 over the next 10 years, according to city inspector Glenn Tatman.

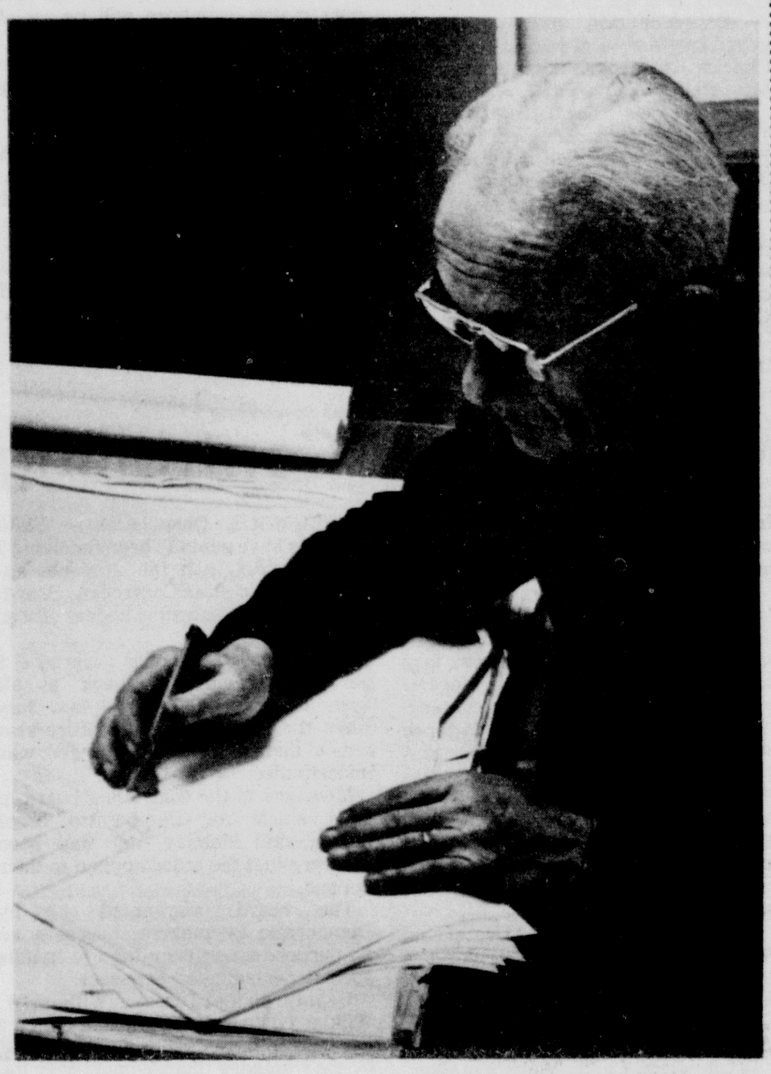

A cooperative agreement with the Ohio Department of Transportation could provide more durable street markings for Washington C.H. Provisions of the agreement, if approved by the Federal Highway Administration, state that thermoplastic markings for all intersections with traffic lights and school zones will be installed and maintained for a two-year period by the state highway department. Funds for the program were made available through the 1973 Federal Highways act.

Tatman said thermoplastic markings are more durable and adhere to the road better than the conventional bead-painted markings. The thermoplastic would be installed over the painted markings and experts say the material will last from five to ten years longer than pain. Tatman said the thermoplastic is an eighth of an inch thick and it is washed clean by the rain.

If the grant is approved and the thermoplastic installed, it could "free two men and $10,000 a year to do other work," Tatman said. Over a ten-year period, the program would save Washington C.H. $100,000.

Tatman spent some 50 hours studying the 64 intersections in Washington C.H. with traffic lights or school crossings to prepare the request. Under the program, stop lines, crosswalks,

Patty tells of fear with SLA

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Weaving a chilling saga of fear and degradation, Patricia Hearst says her Symbionese Liberation Army kidnapers forced her to embrace violent revolution and enslaved her mind with the belief she would never escape the terrorist underground.

Fighting back tears, Miss Hearst finally told her story to the world Monday in testimony at her bank robbery trial. It was a bizarre account of weeks in darkness, sexual assault, months of living with the recurring threat of death and a night of watching some of her most vicious tormentors die in flames.

Testifying with the jury absent, she said she took part in the robbery only out of fear of death and said she never surrendered because remaining SLA members threatened to stalk her for the rest of her life if she did. She was captured last Sept. 18.

With a whispy voice that was barely audible at times, the pale newspaper heiress said flight was futile as two surviving SLA members continued to carry on the legacy of those who died — to imprison her forever in a mental dungeon.

"Where could I go?" she asked several times, saying the SLA convinced her that she had been abandoned by her family and that the FBI wanted her dead.

Miss Hearst renounced all her taped communiques from the SLA as products of coercion, disclaimed her celebrated love for slain SLA member Willie Wolfe as a farce and said she was forced to help rob a bank and later tell a teen-ager that she acted freely.

"They told me I would be killed," was her simple, direct explanation of many of her actions. She said she was threatened with death "hundreds of times."

Miss Hearst, 21, took the stand at a special hearing at her bank robbery trial as the defense sought to suppress all evidence of her movements after the April 15, 1974, bank robbery.

The teen-ager to whom the defendant allegedly confessed, Thomas Dean Matthews, was scheduled to be the first witness for the prosecution today in its attempt to convince U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter to let the jury hear a tape of Miss Hearst and young Matthews' testimony.

Under questioning from chief defense attorney F. Lee Bailey, Miss Hearst said SLA members William and Emily Harris, now awaiting trial in Los Angeles, kept up the barrage of intimidation after six SLA members were killed in a fiery shootout with Los Angeles police on May 17, 1974.

She admitted under cross-examination by U.S. Atty. James L. Browning that she sprayed a sporting goods store with gunfire a day earlier to allow the Harrises to flee a bungled shoplifting attempt.

She called it a reflex action from repeated SLA indoctrination on how she should act in a given situation.

Asked by Browning if she had felt good about aiding the Harrises with her gunfire, she replied, "It did not give me any feeling, it happened so quick, I did it without even thinking."

She said the Harrises ordered her to tell Matthews that she willingly joined the SLA and freely participated in the bank robbery. If she failed to follow their instructions, she said, "they told me I would be killed."

Miss Hearst spent four hours on the stand Monday and quietly implicated nearly a dozen persons in her underground odyssey, some dead, most still alive.

She said the April 24, 1974, taped communique in which she boasted of her role in the bank robbery was written by SLA member Angela Atwood.

During cross-examination, Browning handed her the brown-barreled, sawed-off M1 carbine she had wielded in the bank and asked if it was her weapon. She said it was, holding it with both hands and basing her identification on "the stock and the bolt."

Asked if the weapon was loaded during the robbery, she replied, "I believe it was." Bailey objected at that point but was overruled, and the de-

Mrs. White, 93, enjoys today's modern conveniences

Civil War widow keeps youthful outlook

By GEOFF MAVIS
Record-Herald Staff Writer

Many years have gone by since Mrs. Viva White, now 93, married a Civil War veteran 35 years her senior. However, aside from some physical handicaps, the congenial resident of Margaret Clark Oakfield Convalescent Center on Rawlings Street still maintains a youthful love of fun.

Betrothed around the turn of the century at the age of 25, to 60-year-old Henry P. White, formerly of Company H, 176th Ohio Volunteer Infantry, Mrs. White noted that, "He was an old man and I was a kid." But, having been left an orphan at an early age, the New Holland native was eager to find a more secure life by marriage to a man she genuinely felt close to.

The newlyweds took up residence at 915 S. Main Street in Washington C. H., where Mrs. White resided until five years ago when she moved to the convalescent center. Apparently, her husband, who didn't talk much about his Civil War experiences, and was "more quiet than his wife," according to Mrs. White, did not remain inactive in his later years. A daughter, Frances, now 68, was born soon after the wedlock, and up until 1926, when Mr. White died, stock dealing was the family's main source of income.

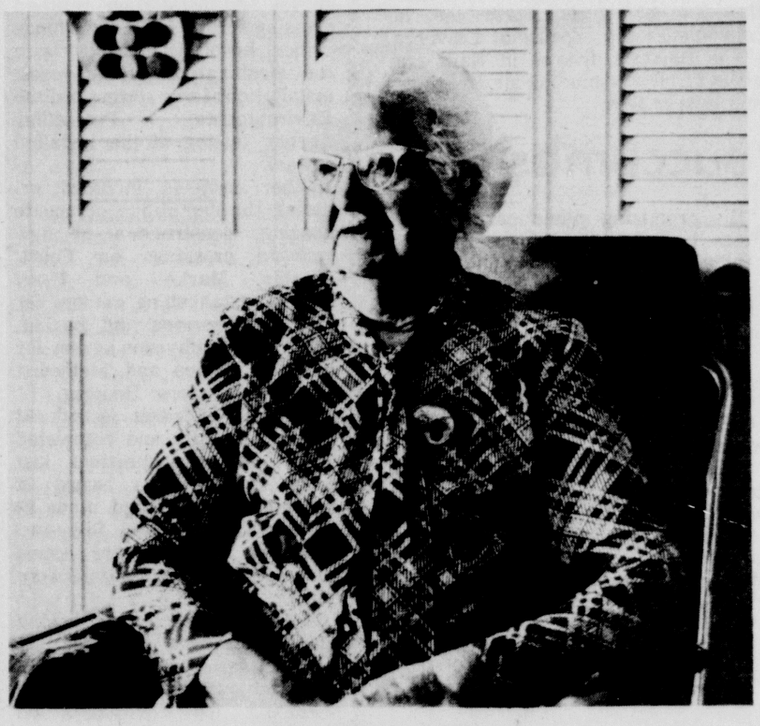

Mrs. White never remarried after her husband's death, but chose to remain at home, look after her daughter, and carry on with the family chores. The latter duties included making dairy products, raising and butchering livestock, canning, and making clothes, all of these items being for home consumption.

Though her days were well-occupied, she did seem to find time to take her daughter to local events such as area fairs and the visiting medicine shows. Mrs. White particularily enjoyed these traveling shows and their convincing promoters of special elixirs because, "I was afraid I needed some medicine which I hadn't known about before," she said jokingly.

Mrs. White does not look back on the mud streets and saloons of earlier Washington C. H. with complete nostalgia. In her lifetime she has watched Washington C. H. grow from a farm community to a more industrialized area, and she likes the modern conveniences that accompany such growth.

There is one convenience that Mrs. White has never indulged in, and that is riding in an airplane. "I'd have been dead of fright before I stepped in," she said. Currently, she is happy just to be able to walk up and down the hallways, a feat she was not able to accomplish a few years back when a stroke and painfully arthritic legs immobilized her.

With previous help from the convalescent center staff and a metal walker, Mrs. White now frequents the hallways many times a day, visiting with and telling jokes to fellow residents and patients. In turn, she is visited constantly by friends, nurses, and ministers who like her sense of humor and enjoy her company. Her daughter, Frances, is often by her side, noting that "Since I turned 60, I've felt I can now tell mother what to do in some areas, rather than ask her."

Mrs. Viva White

Mrs. White, though still remaining strongly independent, has not let pride keep her from receiving aid from those who are present to help her with any difficulty that might arise. "I've enjoyed the way I've lived, and now I don't have much to worry about. People have been lovely to me, and I couldn't say anything against them."

U.S. disaster aid flows to Guatemala

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (AP) — More than a sixth of Guatemala's population was reported homeless today as the official death toll from the earthquake last week topped 17,000.

President Kjell Eugenio Laugerud told diplomats that the count of casualties in last Wednesday's earthquake had risen to 17,032 dead, 54,825 injured, 221,994 homes destroyed and 1,034,441 of the nation's 6 million people homeless.

It was the worst recorded disaster in Central American history. A catastrophe of the same magnitude in the United States, where the population is 34 times as large, would result in more than 575,000 dead, nearly 1,865,000 injured and 35 million homeless.

There were complaints from many localities but "distribution of relief supplies is far better coordinated than in any other recent disaster I can recall," said Brian Moss of the U.S. Foreign Disaster Relief Office.

Col. Guillermo Echeveria of the national relief committee, said 100 armed troops were sent into four villages Monday to control food distribution.

"There have been disturbances but nothing serious," he said, denying reports that a helicopter crew was attacked and all the craft's cargo of food stolen at San Andres Itzapa, 50 miles north of Guatemala City.

Laugerud met with the diplomatic corps to discuss additional aid.

Moss said U.S. government aid so far totaled more than $1.5 million and could reach $5 million. By 4 p.m. Monday, 31 U.S. military flights delivered 500 tents, a 15-kilowatt generator to power a 200-bed hospital, 12 3,000-gallon water tanks with pumps, 16 helicopters, ambulances, a 100-bed field hospital, doctors, communications equipment, 500 pints of plasma, 5,000 doses of tetanus vaccine and large quantities of other medicines.

Private U.S. relief agencies have committed more than $13 million in short-term aid, a report from Washington said. The U.S. Embassy said these organizations have already delivered 47 tons of food and 11 tons of medicine.

Police chief raps gun control law

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland City Council leaders say their handgun registration ordinance will be an effective tool to reduce the city's homicide toll, but Police Chief Lloyd Garey had a different reaction to the new law Monday night:

"It's bad news," said Garey.

Garey said for one thing the details of registering and photographing gunowners and issuing the $5 ID cards will take many policemen from regular assignments.

"It won't be as simple as the legislation looks, and enforcement will be impossible," he said. The chief is an appointee of Mayor Ralph Perk, who has been a staunch foe of gun registration.

The Republican mayor, faced with the near certainty that a veto would be overridden, said the ordinance was "purely cosmetic," but signed it into law immediately after the Democrat-controlled council passed it by a 24-8 vote.

Council President George Forbes said the measure included an amendment delaying the deadline for registering guns 60 days so police could set up registration and enforcement machinery.

"It could produce more homicides than we have now, if people interpret the legislation as a permit to carry a weapon, and many will think that," said the chief.

He predicted there will be no beneficial effect on law enforcement and called the law a needless waste of money.

The Gun Control Federation, which drafted the ordinance, estimated there are 60,000 to 100,000 handguns in Cleveland.

However, Police Lt. Michael J. Roth, who is in charge of destruction of confiscated guns, estimated the number of handguns in the city is closer to 500,000, with an estimated 100,000 owners affected by the registration law.

In addition to getting ID cards, gunowners will have to pay $1 for each gun registered. Violators face a maximum $1,000 fine under the ordinance.

Stock list turns mixed

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off almost a point in the early going, but gainers took a 4-3 lead over losers in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exhange-listed issues.

Alan Greenspan, the chief White House economic adviser, repeated to newsmen this morning his view that the economic recovery was in its "moderately early stages" and potentially could last for a very long time.

But the effect of such optimism seemed to be counter-balanced in the market by a continuing inclination among investors to nail down some profits from the record-breaking rally that took place in January.

Economy top issue, Gallup says

OXFORD, Ohio (AP)—Opinion pollster George Gallup told a Miami University crowd of 400 Monday night that the economic situation looms as the biggest factor in the 1976 presidential election.

Gallup, president of Gallup Polls Inc. and the American Institute of Public Opinion, said that, historically, incumbent presidents have been at their lowest periods of popularity in times of recession and low employment.

Gallup took issue with the public media often giving an unbalanced account of the American situation by emphasizing the negative. Yet, he said, current polls show some "frightening" things about the public mood.

"People tend to feel satisfied with their own situation at home but are disillusioned with many aspects of the national situation," Gallup said.

He said people feel frustrated because politicians are not talking about the things which the polls show people want. He said these included electoral reform, crime prevention, a period of national service and "the whole idea of release from the ghetto."

He added, "before we bemoan our fate, let's ask ourselves these questions: Are we participating in the political process? Are we doing a proper job with our children? Are we studying the issues and reading up on the them? Are we doing what we should in life—in the proper job? Are we putting our religious beliefs into practice? And our those of us in communication trying to create a new national mood?."

Gallup said only six in 10 vote, half are unable to name their congressman, only few know what he stands for and young people seem to be forfeiting their opportunity to try to bring about political change. He said surveys show half the people would go into another career if they had to start over.

Hearst case

fendant later said she wasn't certain.

Miss Hearst sat emotionless through much of the testimony, sipping water from a styrofoam cup and occasionally waving her right hand softly in the air as she made a point.

She startled the courtroom twice, perhaps most dramatically with her declaration that she had been sexually assaulted by Wolfe when she was kept blindfolded in a closet for several weeks after her Feb. 4, 1974, kidnaping.

She said her June 7, 1974, taped eulogy of Wolfe and the other SLA members who died in the fire was written by the Harrises. In the tape, she proclaimed her love for Wolfe, calling him the "the gentlest, most beautiful man I've ever known."

On the witness stand, however, she portrayed Wolfe as callous.

Choking back tears, Miss Hearst said Wolfe accosted her in the closet a month after her kidnaping and wasn't the only SLA member to sexually abuse her. Bailey did not pursue the matter further.

In Litchfield, Conn., Wolfe's mother, Virginia Wolfe, said, "As for my gentle Willie assaulting anyone, it's not true. He was attractive and possibly they were in love.... But assault was not part of his makeup."

A second part of Miss Hearst's testimony that caused a rustling in the hushed courtroom was her qualified admission that SLA chieftain Donald "Cinque" DeFreeze had offered her a choice of remaining with the tiny ragtag band of revolutionaries or returning home.

Under questioning by Browning, Miss Hearst said DeFreeze once came into the SLA's hideout and "said I could go home or stay with them. I didn't believe him."

She said DeFreeze ordered her to mention his offer of freedom on her tape admitting complicity in the bank robbery.

Miss Hearst testified that she and the Harrises watched live television newscasts of the shootout between six SLA members and Los Angeles police.

Killed in the Los Angeles house that became an inferno during the shootout were DeFreeze, Miss Atwood, Wolfe, Camilla Hall, Nancy Ling Perry and Patricia Soltysik. Miss Hearst said all helped plan or participated in the bank robbery.

With her attorney questioning her, she said the SLA's final stand affected her deeply. The barrage of gunfire into the frame structure reinforced her SLA-inspired belief that the FBI wanted to kill her, she said.

She noted that newscasters were suggesting she might be in the house.

"As a result of observing the public officials firing bullets and incendiary bombs into a house in which you were believed to be, did that affect your belief that the FBI would kill you?" asked Bailey.

"Yes," was the reply from the slim defendant.

After the shootout, she said, she and the Harrises fled to the Oakland-Berkeley area.

After meeting sports activist Jack Scott there, she and the Harrises separated, she said, and Scott took her by automobile to a Pennsylvania farmhouse where she spent the summer of 1974. Scott's parents accompanied them on the trip to Pennsylvania and Scott returned her to the West in the fall, she testified.

Controlling board funds also sliced

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State agencies have actually been receiving 2 per cent less than the amounts approved by the State Controlling Board, a Rhodes Administration budget officer has disclosed.

Gov. James A. Rhodes ordered a 2 per cent spending cutback at all agencies under his control last July when the Democratic legislature sent him a budget which he charged was underfunded.

Members of the controlling board, a key vehicle for Democratic fiscal policy, said Monday they had been unaware that the order applied to their actions.

The board, dominated 4-3 by Democratic lawmakers, oversees an all-purpose emergency fund to handle special nonbudgeted expenses.

Deputy Budget Director William W. Wilkins confirmed that he had culled 2 per cent from the $8.6 million released by the watchdog finance panel over the past seven months.

That came as an admitted surprise to Controlling Board President Robert Howarth, who works with Wilkins in the budget office. Budget Director Howard Collier had earlier said he didn't know whether the spending restriction applied.

"You have the right guy here," Wilkins said following Collier's testimony. "I'm the guy who made the interpretation that the 2 per cent should apply."

Control board fiscal expert Richard Sheridan estimated that about $169,000 had been slashed from funding requests since July.

"We were working under the assumption that his was the full amount from that department when they asked for it," said House Finance Chairman Myrl H. Shoemaker, D-88 Bourneville. "The (agency) request should have been reduced by 2 per cent."

Shoemaker said the controllers would attempt to recoup the $169,000 to add to their dwindling emergency fund. "Some way, we should have been apprised of the 2 per cent," he said.

Wilkins shouldered the blame for the breakdown in communications but sought to downplay the impact of the cutback.

"One hundred sixty-eight thousand dollars isn't going to make or break us at the state level," he said. The state is operating under an $11.3 billion budget for the current two-year fiscal period.

Wilkins will become budget director on April 10 when Collier departs to resume his duties as chief finance officer at the Medical College of Toledo.

lane lines in the form of dashes, channelizing lines along with symbols and legends such as directional arrows and the work "only" will be marked with thermoplastic.

Tatman's request would supply the city with over three miles of thermoplastic markings.

"This (project) is funded 100 per cent by the federal government and there are no strings attached," Tatman said. In 1973, a similar federal project supplied the city with 186, 30-inch stop signs and last year the project was broadened the posts for the signs were furnished. Washington C.H. is also taking advantage of a federally-funded project that will upgrade railroad crossings on city streets.

Tatman said he submitted the request for the thermoplastic markings early and hopes the installation of the thermoplastic will begin in May.

Submitting the request for the thermoplastic markings has taken up most of Tatman's time this year. Last year, the city inspector was involved in numerous special projects.

The city inspector's 1975 projects included the installation and relocation of parking fine boxes, the relocation of the parkings spaces in the off street lots, relocation of traffic lights at Clinton and Leesburg avenues, installation of stop, speed limit, yield, and no outlet signs, a paving project of Clinton Ave. and old U.S. 35, no turn on red survey and installation, railroad crossing survey for federal funds project, hospital sign project with the Washington C.H. Jaycees, installation of new sewers and the Environmental Protection Agency testing of the installed sewers.

Other projects included ordering the demolition of unsafe housing, construction of new railroad crossings on Court, Temple, Market and Pearl Streets, establishing detours for railroad crossings and paving, and a new subdivision survey for Gilmore Homes and Methodist (retired ministers) Housing.

The city inspector issued 163 housing permits and completed 1,413 building inspections last year. Tatman also issued 92 electrical permits and made 80 electrical inspections. Sixty-two plumbing permits were issued and 44 plumbing inspections were made.

Tatman inspected 27 zoning applications and reviewed 297 zoning queries in 1975. He also received over 2,500 complaints including 100 complaints on weeds, 192 on trash and 974 street department complaints.

During the first month of 1976, Tatman made 85 building inspections and issued three building permits. Six electrical permits were issued and 12 inspections made while two plumbing permits were issued and four inspections made.

He also reviewed 14 zoning queries and received 231 complaints last month.

Couple wed, divorced, rewed in battle over income taxes

The Boyters' second marriage is only a month old, but already they say they are contemplating their second divorce. Their first divorce was in Haiti Dec. 8, ending a nine-year marriage. They remarried a month later.

Their behavior is the result of anger — not directed at each other, but at the American income tax system. The Boyters say the system favors single persons over married taxpayers.

"We did it more for principle than anything else," Mrs. Boyter said. "We just kept getting madder and madder each year."

Both Boyters work for the federal government and earn about $23,000 each annually.

Mrs. Boyter estimates their 1975 taxes as a married couple would be about $10,300, regardless of whether they filed a joint or single return. If they were single, she says, each would pay about $4,500, a total of $9,000. The $1,300 difference added up to divorce for them.

"About three years ago they gave a tax break to single persons," Mrs. Boyter said. "But that doesn't apply to married persons filing separately.

"And then, with last year's tax rebate we got rooked again. If we had been two single people we would have gotten back about $200 each. As a married couple we just got $100. I think that was the last straw.

"If they don't change the laws, I have every intention of getting a divorce again this year."

It is possible for a couple earning about equal salaries to save some money by filing as single persons, said David Estey, a spokesman for the Internal Revenue Service's Baltimore office.

He said Congress passed the Revenue Act of 1971 to bring rates for single persons in line with the rates for married couples.

In some income brackets, it is cheaper to file as a single person, he added, but there is a question whether the tax saving is worth the inconvenience and expense of a divorce.

The Boyter's divorce in Haiti cost about $1,100 — including air fare, hotel and lawyer fees.

Percy Faith succumbs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Percy Faith, who turned to composing and arranging music after an accident kept him from becoming a concert pianist, is dead of cancer at 67.

Faith was born in Canada and at 18 was studying piano at the Toronto Conservatory of Music when tragedy hit.

Faith worked composing and orchestrating music and led an orchestra in the Toronto area.

In the early 1930s, he was an arranger-conductor for Canadian radio. He moved to the United States in 1940 and became prominent on the airwaves here.

In addition to helping singers win gold records, Faith was nominated for an Academy Award and is credited with recording more than 45 albums for Columbia, the company he joined in 1950 as musical director of its popular division.

Farmers were offered $3.91 a bushel for 14 per cent protein wheat at markets in the state Monday, but little trading was reported. Protestors have demanded as much as $5 to $5.25 a bushel.

North Dakota Agriculture Commissioner Myron Just said that although the production cost for a bushel of wheat varies across the state, the average "break even point" is about $4 a bushel, or nine cents more than farmers were offered Monday.

Said Gordon Smaaladen, manager of the Crosby Farmers Co-op Elevator, "They are not selling and I'm not selling cash grain either. I'm in favor of anything that will get the farmers a better price and I'll work with them for it."

Verl Loyland, manager of the Finley Farmers Grain and Elevator Co., also reported few transactions. He said the timing for the stall was good because processors' stocks are low.

"Canada is sold out of No. 1 and No. 2 wheat," he said, adding that users will have difficulty getting more stocks quickly. "This type of holding action would work very well at this time."

A committee of farmers coordinating the holding action was scheduled to meet today in Bismarck to examine the effects and plan further action.

Just said the farmers' action may slow sales to a "trickle" because it apparently has "general support from the farmers."

Lockheed Aircraft may not be able to repay on loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp., which doled out more than $20 million in payoffs to foreign government officials, may not be able to repay bank loans guaranteed by the federal government.

U.S. Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats, in a report to Congress dated Jan. 30, said Lockheed has forecast operating profits through 1979 that are "sufficient to maintain the company's stability, but insufficient to liquidate its guaranteed bank loans by the end of 1978 — the maximum time provided by law."

The report also indicated Lockheed's management was worried that publicity about the company's foreign bribes would harm sales overseas.

Staat's revelation followed testimony last week in which A.C. Kotchian, Lockheed's chief operating officer, told a Senate subcommittee details of many payoffs, some of them totaling millions of dollars, to foreign officials in an effort to assure sales of company planes.

Lockheed earlier had admitted paying some $22 million to foreign officials.

Congress, under a 1971 law, authorized a government guarantee of up to $250 million in loans to Lockheed. The loans were to be repaid by the end of 1975 but were renewable for no more than three years. Last May, the Emergency Loan Guarantee Board extended the government guarantee through the end of 1977.

As of Dec. 31, 1975, Lockheed's overall bank loans totaled $595 million. Of that amount, $195 million was guaranteed by the federal government.

To achieve profit projections in the near future, Lockheed is counting on substantial revenues from foreign sources, according to Staats.

Report from citizens study committee

City government has changed

The citizens study committee was appointed by Washington C.H. City Manager George H. Shapter to Look into the needs of the city of Washington C.H. and present ideas of how to solve those needs and to acquaint the people of the community of the needs.

For the past several weeks, the citizens study committee has been studying the overall city budget. Committee members felt this should be their immediate concern. The committee has reached several conclusions; mainly that Washington C.H. City Council members, the city manager and those that are involved in city government have a monumental task in trying to balance the budget for the year 1976. In view of the deficit in the city budget and the fact that the city government operations are already in the second month of the year, the committee feels that immediate action should be taken to balance the budget.

In reaching the conclusion, the committee was aware that it now has a complete and detailed budget to work with; one set of figures that are as accurate as can be, taking into consideration that much of the income has to be estimated. It is evident that the city manager has spent endless hours in turning this budget into its simplest form and is readily available for any concerned citizen to stop in and look at it in the city offices.

There is indecision among members of Washington C.H. City Council about which direction they must take in providing the residents of Washington C.H. the best possible services for the least amount of money, and what money is available.

For years now, past City Council members have legislated an income tax in an effort to raise monies to operate the city in a reasonable and business like manner. The income tax has been brought to a vote and defeated.

This gives an indication that the residents of Washington C.H. want to cut back in services, cut back in personnel in the police and fire departments and turn off the street lights.

The committee feels this is not the true picture of the wants and needs of the community, but instead there has been a credibility gap in showing the true financial picture of the community.

Therefore, the citizens study committee has come to the conclusion that it should make an all-out effort to show the true financial picture of the city and the committee members will attempt to do this with a series of articles to be published on the editorial page in the Record-Herald. The committee members will attempt to have the articles in the simplest form that they can be presented.

The committee will be writing about the general fund, where the money comes from, where the money goes, and what it costs to operate the city. Other topics will cover how much of the tax dollar goes to the city, why some funds can't be transferred from one fund to another, what the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA program is all about, is the city keeping up with it obligations and should we have a master plan?

The citizens committee members hope to better educate the residents of Washington C.H. of the complex overall workings of the city government. The committee invites Washington C.H. residents to clip the articles and save them, and above all, if you question something that appears or simply do not understand, contact a member of the citizens study committee.

In the next series on Thursday, Feb. 12, the topic will be: "The general fund — Where does the money come from?"

Shapter's views

As to procedures it is City Manager George Shapter's belief that public business should be documented and the documentation made available to the public so that they can be well-informed of city government operations.

SHAPTER

Shapter expects the city offices to reflect that of a well-organized business with well-informed employes providing a courteous and impartial service to the public. At the same time, he expects these employes to be justly compensated for their knowledge, experience and tenure.

He believes the city cannot overcome its problems in a single stroke. His challenge is to initiate those changes within the city's organizational structure that will approach the problems in a logical manner so as to maximize the result obtained from each dollar spent.

City business has expanded rapidly in recent years and the city is no longer able to efficiently operate with outmoded systems. To obtain 1976 caliber results, the city must have available 1976 caliber tools with which to do the job.

Eye early attack on heart problems

CINCINNATI (AP) — Heart researchers are hoping they can head off heart problems in later life for newborns by controlling their mothers diet during the breast feeding period.

"We know that artherosclerosis, hardening of the arteries, is a degenerative disease of age," said Dr. Charles Glueck, director of the Lipids Center at the University of Cincinnati.

"A lot of people think that when a man dies of a heart attack at age 45, that the process of hardening of the arteries occurred overnight. The process begins in childhood.

"Artherosclerosis from the cradle to the grave—that's what we're looking at," Glueck said. "The more we can learn about it, at any age, the better off we are."

Twenty-four pregnant women have been enrolled in the program and will participate after their babies are a month old.

They will be furnished with a 12-week diet. The first six weeks the mothers will eat high fat and protein diets and low cholesterol food the second week. Doctors will take milk samples and blood samples from the babies during the period to see if a high cholesterol diet effects both the milk and blood.

Glueck noted that only 20 per cent of babies in the United States are now breast fed while the other 80 per cent get formulas.

"It is clear that infants thrive on a variety of early milk feedings, whether breast milk, commercial formula or formulas made from condensed cow milk," he said.

"Breast feeding is historically a superlative way to feed babies. I think there are some clear benefits from breast feeding, both psychological and biochemical.

"The important comparison we hope to make, based on data we already have, is how do these breast fed babies compare to formula fed babies and can we discern any advantages or disadvantages in simulating the mothers milk for the formula," he said.

Dr. Glueck said he anticipates the study will provide other information on fat soluble vitamins "a" and "e" in breast milk. The data will be useful to formula manufacturers.

He noted that very little scientific information on mothers milk is available compared to veterinarian studies of cows milk.

"There are voluminous papers about the constituents of cows milk from various species of cattle and there has been very little study on the fat composition, cholesterol and fatty acid composition of breast milk and how it changes," Dr. Glueck said.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Seeks love secrets of red-blooded Americans

DEAR ABBY: I am a 35-year-old man who's in love with a beautiful, 28-year-old divorcee. I want to marry her, but she keeps wanting more time to think it over.

In the meantime, she's seeing another man, and I'm afraid he has the edge on me. You see, he's part Kickapoo Indian, and I hear Indians are superior to the white man when it comes to lovemaking: Closely guarded tribal secrets on how to satisfy a woman are passed down from father to son. If there is any truth to that, I'm willing to pay whatever is necessary to find out.

Let me say that I was married for four years, and I never had any complaints fom my wife, but if Indians are better lovers than white men, I would like to find out why.

Maybe your readers can help. Thank you.

ED IN EAST ILLINOIS

DEAR ED: I can offer two suggestions: Try The Bureau of Indian Affairs or the American Indian Movement.

DEAR ABBY: With reference to that ding-a-ling who is seriously considering suing his parents for $100,000 for having him circumcised as an infant-a "barbaric surgery, an assault on his person, which permanently maimed and disfigured him." In my opinion, he was circumcised at the wrong end.

YIDDISH MAMA: SILVER SPRINGS, MD.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 50-year-old nurse who has been widowed for 15 years.

In the line of duty, I took care of a very attractive well-to-do widower, age 59. When he left the hospital, he asked if he could see me again so we could get better acquainted. I agreed.

It took him nearly six months to call me, after which we started dating. I was on cloud eight! We've been going out for over a year now, and he proposed marriage.

My problem is that he admits that he is still seeing several other women and says that until he has a definite answer from me he will continue to date others.

Abby, this has turned me off on him and made me skeptical of his so-called marriage proposal. I am losing respect for him. If a man thinks enough of a woman to want to marry her, why would he want to date other women?

FRUSTRATED AT 50

DEAR FRUSTRATED: My guess is that he is trying to maneuver you into an early decision. If you want to marry him, say yes. And until you do, he's a free agent.

The taste of SALT

No sane American can oppose efforts to achieve symmetrical strategic arms limitation with the Soviet Union (SALT), but where some of us differ strongly with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is over his confusion of hard-boiled negotiations to avert nuclear war with detente. We are convinced, for example, that in the past Kissinger has made concessions on SALT in the full expectation that the Soviets would behave, or get their clients to behave, in Indochina, the Middle East and now Angola.

Indeed, if you go back and look at the original SALT negotiations and then at the hit-and-run session at Vladivostok, you discover an interesting pattern. When we have signed or initialed the agreements, we have issued unilateral statements underscoring our expectations about Soviet behavior. The Soviets have not publicly commented on their view of our expectations (though Brezhnev has probably regaled the Politburo with his reaction to this quaint American custom). They have simply made it clear they accept Kissinger's freedom of speech.

Thus arose the great dispute over Moscow's "cheating" on SALT. There is not the slightest doubt in my mind that Moscow has been moving heaven and earth to attain nuclear superiority, but when you get out the original SALT documents you find contrived ambiquities. Then you realize that they have been "cheating" in terms of Kissinger's unilateral explanation of what these ambiguities really meant. Since Brezhnev did not repudiate these footnotes at the time, the presumption was made by Kissinger that silence indicated consent. This novel diplomatic notion would have been treated with scorn by Professor Kissinger in a Harvard seminar, but only a few small-minded nay-sayers like "Scoop" Jackson, James Schlesinger and Paul Nitze have objected as the Chairman has peddled this absurdity around Washington.

Curiously, Kissinger allowed the Palestinian Liberation Organization to be bootlegged into the United Nation's Security Council on precisely this gambit. Ambassador Pat Moynihan was instructed to treat the P.L.O.'s presence at the Middle East session as "procedural" (not subject to veto) on the grounds that the Council can invite anybody in to make a speech. This is good law, but then Soviet spokesman Jacob Malik announced that, in the view

But Brezhnev simply plays by different rules, and we have nobody to blame but ourselves for our problems. As the old saying goes, "The first time you get taken for a ride, blame the other guy; the second time, kick yourself." Since Lenin's day the Communists have rejected Kissinger's beloved concept of "linkage," and there is no reason to believe that this persuasive charm is going to alter the character of the Politburo. Particularly when those veteran ideaological gangsters think they have a winner. I would love to see the K.G.B.'s "psychiatric profile" of Chairman Kissinger, a character who, no matter how many times you kick him, comes back for more. ((When Kissinger announced in Moscow that Angola was on the detente agenda, Brezhnev quipped that the Secretary was free to discuss the question with his State Department aide, Helmut Sonenfeld!)

"Linkage" just isn't on and never has been. Boshevik theory makes a sharp distinction between formal state relations and subversive activities. I think it was the early Soviet Foreign Commissar Chicherin who observed wryly that one of a Bolshevik ambassador's tasks was to measure bourgeois leaders for Communist nooses. Thus it was predictable that Brezhnev flatly refused to discuss Angola with Kissinger. Why should he? "Peaceful coexistence" (as Moscow calls detente) always had a provision excluding "wars of liberation" from the sunshine of mutual cooperation! They are simply barred from the detente agenda.

In short, by unilaterally ending the Cold War we have set ourselves up for some nasty shocks - the fall of Indochina, the Yom Kippur War, and the ongoing "liberation" of Angola by those Communist Gurkhas, the Cubans. Isn't it time the spell was broken and we came out of our trance? The Cold War, anyone?

Sewing skills are not needed to take the course. In fact, basic steps are included for mending rips and sewing on buttons for those who need this learning resource. The course is filled with other helps too. Guidelines for figuring your best personal clothing coloring, fashion and design lines and instructions for embroidery, patchwork, contrasting new collar and cuffs, stain removal, typing scarves and recycling ideas are included too. A resource for maternity wardrobe planning is also available upon request.

Enroll today by send your name and address along with $1.00 to the Fayette County Extension Service, 310 South Fayette Street, Box 190, Washington C.H., Ohio 43160. If you would like to give a friend or relative the course as a gift, we can enclose a gift card when we mail her the first lesson.

HOME MAINTENANCE SERIES

A new opportunity comes our way with a TV series called "Yes, You Can", scheduled to begin February 17th on WOSU Channel 34. Our local Cable TV will carry this program on Channel 8 starting on February 17, 7:00 P.M. for the nest nine Tuesdays. This series of lessons helps you to save the cost of minor repairs and maintenance by learning to do the job yourself. The lessons are: Feb. 17 - Shock of Your Life (Simple Electric Repairs); Feb. 24 - Cleaning On A Shoestring (Low Cost Cleaners); Mar. 2 - Faucet Fixits (Stop Leaky Faucets); Mar. 9 - Toilet Tuneup (Repairs and Adjustments); Mar. 16 - Wise Up—Tighten Up (Caulking & Weather Stripping); March 23 - Paint It Yourself (Exterior); Mar. 30 - The Great Cover Up (Wall Repair); Apr. 6 - Paint It Yourself (Interior); Apr. 13 - Making Space Stretch (Storage Ideas);

If you plan on watching the series (2 or more programs) please call and indicate which programs you plan to watch. I'll send you a free leaflet for that lesson so you can follow along and take notes and-or have it for reference later. I hope many of you can watch the series, as the programs are well done and easy to follow for step by step do-it-yourself instructions. Since everyone does not have Cable TV please share this information with your firends and neighbors, too. Perhaps you'd like to have them over to view the program with you. I hope you enjoy the "at-home easy chair learning" we're offering this winter. Your response by your enrollment will indicate to us whether we do it again.

The Washington Garden Club met in the home of Mrs. Robert Wilson when a covered dish luncheon was enjoyed at noon, to observe the club member's birthdays. Mrs. T.N. Willis gave the invocation and favors of owl refrigerator magnets were made for each one by Mrs. Eugene Cook.

Following the meal, a business session was conducted by Mrs. Wilson. Each name a branch she had forced indoors for roll call. Some named were leather leaf viburnum, clove bush, pussy willow, lilac, mock orange, honeysuckle, pink spirea, kerria, Japonica, bridal wreath, white spirea and forsythia.

A thank you from Miss Mary K. West of Memorial Hospital for the subscription of "Range Rick" for the children's ward at the hospital, was read, and a thank you note from Mrs. Jane K. Hyer for the door swag made for the boy's cottage at the Fayette County Children's Home for the holidays.

The club voted to purchase 50 Scotch pine trees for the club members and for the Rose Avenue Rose Petals Blue Bird group. Mrs. Donald Meredith is chairman of the Garden Club trees. Orders for the trees are to be sent in by Feb. 20.

Mrs. Wilson reported on the County Fair Show schedule and the new changes made.

It was announced that a contest on Rural Mail Boxes to be decorated for the Bicentennial year, will be conducted. These will be judged by townships and prizes awarded by the Garden Club Presidents' Council. Mrs. Edwin Thompson of the Fayette Garden Club is chairman of the project.

Due to conflicting dates, Jerry Cremeans will conduct the March program instead of in February.

Mrs. Donald Meredith conducted the program on "Pruning Shrubs and Trees." She said that tools for pruning are sharp purning shears, tree saw and paint, and that pruning is a way of caring for and showing one cares about trees whether they are flowering, fruit or shade trees. One should not prune if the temperature is under 45 degrees, she said. She also stated that one should make a straight cut behind where a limb is broken, and anything larger than one inch should be sawed and painted. The paint is to keep out insects and disease. One should never prune early blooming shrubs until after they bloom, she also said, and that one prunes for the beauty care and health of trees and shrubs.

Cheer sisters were revealed and new names drawn for the year. Mrs. Jess Robinett and Mrs. Walter Wilson were prize winners, and the group will meet at Anderson's Restaurant for the March meeting.

At meeting of local Kiwanis Club

The importance of agriculture in Fayette County was discussed with members of the Washington C. H. Kiwanis Club during their regular weekly dinner meeting Monday night in the Terrace Lounge.

"While industry might have its ups and downs, agriculture will take up the slack," said John P. Gruber, Fayette County agricultural extension agent.

"Your local businessman can tell when the farmer is going through financial problems. Agriculture will always be a vital part of this community," Gruber said. "With some of the best soil in the state, Fayette County farmers will not be vacating their production plants and moving to other communities as industry might do."

In 1969, gross cash farm receipts from marketing in Fayette County totaled $20,800,000. In 1974, Gruber said, the figure was $43,000,000. For each $1 of farm receipts, $3 to $5 is pumped into the economy of the Fayette County area and the state.

Gruber pointed out that sources of farm income have changed. In 1969 sales from livestock accounted for 75 per cent. Today, he said, corn soybeans and wheat account for 60 per cent of the total, partially due to the increase in grain prices and the fact that livestock prices are less competitive.

The agriculture extension agent noted that productivity has increased in Fayette County. He said in 1969 the government made farm payments of $1.9 million in Fayette County to cut back farm production. The subsidies decreased to $28,000 in 1974.

There are 973 farms in Fayette County with an overall average of $38,000 per farm of gross cash farm receipts from marketing.

The meeting was conducted by Tom Mossbarger and the program was arranged by Jack Sommers. Harry Campbell, father of Kiwanis Club member Mike Campbell, was a guest.

Fayette County Disaster Services Agency director Raldon M. Smith was guest speaker at the Fayette County chapter of the American Red Cross Monday night in the choir room of Grace United Methodist Church, corner of North and Market streets.

Smith briefly told how his agency is coordinated with the Red Cross First Aid agency headed by Paul Woods and went on to explain some of the things being done on the local level to avert disaster such as the radio monitors being installed in all Fayette County schools.

Jack Brennan, chairman of the Fayette County Red Cross, called for committee reports over the past three months when the group last met. Woods stated his day care first aid course had been completed and more classes in first aid were being scheduled in the future for various groups in the community.

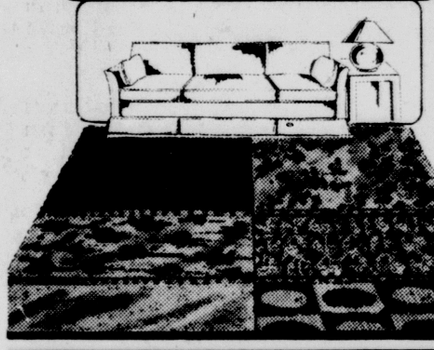

The subject of purchasing a resuscitator "Annie" which is a life-size manakin used as a teaching aid for artificial resuscitation (mouth-to-mouth breathing) and external heart massage was brought up to enhance Woods' first aid course and Red Cross demonstrations. The local chapter approved the purchase after prices and the differtent models of the "Annie" teaching aid were studied.

Helen Slavens, new executive secretary for the Fayette County chapter of the American Red Cross, reported her first blood drive was successful, bringing in 184 pints in spite of the bad weather last Friday when the drive was held.

Brennan appointed one member to serve on a nominating committee to select officers for the 1976 Red Cross year. Tom Mark was chosen and more will be selected at a later date.

Al Justus, national representative to the Columbus Division of the American Red Cross, thanked the board for allowing Helen Slavens to spend a week in Columbus training for her new position.

So how's it doing? Quite well, according to A. C. Nielsen audience estimates. CBS' world of real is outdrawing the make-believe Robinson isle and giving Disney & Co. a brisk run for the money.

Excluding Jan. 11, when "60 Minutes" was bumped for a Tom Sawyer movie, Nielsen figures up to Feb. 1 show that the news program has been seen in an average of 12.2 million homes over an eight-week period.

Which is more than double the audience for the low-rated family show it replaced, "Three for the Road," according to Nielsen figures on that show from October through November.

NBC's durable Disney series still remains king of he Sunday night family hour, averaging more than 14.2 million homes in the eight-week period "60 Minutes" has been rated by the Nielsen folks.

But those ratings show ABC's Robinson series, the second-ranked Sunday "Family Hour" program when the season began, now in third place. The only time it had a larger audience than "60 Minutes" was on Dec. 7, when the CBS program premiered in its new 7 p.m. EST time slot.

For the last three years, "60 Minutes" has appeared on Sundays at 6 p. m. EST, except during the summers, when it appeared in prime evening time, and during the football season, when it went off the air.

He said that when the show was scheduled to compete with the Disney series and "Swiss Family Robinson," "I was told that if we got a 25 per cent share of the audience we'll be doing well."

Rites held for Cloud

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Funeral services were scheduled today for Montgomery County administrator Thomas Cloud, 41, who died Friday of a heart attack.

Cloud, who served in a variety of public service posts, including county commissioner and Wayne Township trustee, ran unsuccessfully in 1974 for the Republican nomination for state auditor. He lost to Roger W. Tracy Jr.

Former county Administrator Paul Stockert said Cloud talked continually about innovations in county government. He said Cloud was interested in efforts to link city and county administration in such places as Indianapolis, Ind., and Nashville, Tenn.

"I think once he accepted the job as county administrator he never gave much thought to politics," said Stockert.

Cloud, an industrial engineer, was a graduate of the General Motors Institute.

Sugar Mapel festival slated near Oxford

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — The Sugar Maple Festival is scheduled for the last weekend in February and the first two weekends in March at Hueston Woods State Park near Oxford, the Department of Natural Resources announced.

KINGS MILLS, O. — Nicolas Reindl, new zoological director of Lion Country Safari at Kings Island, has announced the 100-acre wildlife preserve will feature the addition of 10 Bengal tigers and 50 Olive baboons this season.

A new section is currently being prepared in the preserve for the tigers, which are considered a rare and endangered species.

The baboons will be introduced into the lion section since the animals live together in a natural habitat.

Reindl, 25, said the aggressive baboons will create a livelier atmosphere and increased interest in the lion section.

The Bengal tigers are native to Asia and, unlike the lions, will not live in prides or social groups. They are more independent and will not reproduce offspring as regularly as lions in captivity.

The tigers will weight between 300 and 400 pounds and eat on the average of 12 pounds of meat per day.

The natural habitat of baboons is tropical Africa. They are generally considered the strongest primates of their size and will breed freely in captivity. Their diet consists mostly of fruits and insects.

Reindl said the preserve is undergoing extensive landscape renovation in preparation for the 1976 season. All grassy areas have been reseeded and much of the underbrush has been cleared, to give better visibility of the animals.

Kings Island visitors travel through Lion Country Safari in air-conditioned monorail cars. The tours are accompanied by guides and last approximately 20 minutes.

Last season four African cheetahs and 25 antelope of various species were added to the preserve. The animals brought in when Lion Country Safari opened in 1974 include rhinoceros, giraffe, hippopotamus, elk, zebra, antelope, ostrich, elephants, and lions.

Reindle said the tigers and baboons will arrive here early in April.

Kings Island, including Lion Country Safari, reopens April 24 for preview weekends. All attractions are scheduled to be in full operation for grand opening weekend, May 29-31.

Kings Island is located north of Cincinnati on I-71.

Special secretary employed by bicentennial commission

The Fayette County Bicentennial Commission has taken another positive step towards coordinating activities concerned with the celebration of the nation's 200th birthday. A special secretary has been employed by the commission, and her desk is located in the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce office in the Main Street Mall.

Miss Cynthia Lynn Smith 913 John St., a senior at Washington Senior High School, has been employed on loan from the Fayette County Community Action Commission to help administer incoming data from bicentennial committee groups and any other interested people volunteering assistance.

Having worked in Fayette County Community Action Commission's outreach program and as an office secretary in both Miami Trace and Washington Senior high schools, Miss Smith is well-acquainted with the necessary procedure required of her new position. Since starting her job on Feb. 6, she has been typing up the minutes of bicentennial meetings, handling incoming calls of inquiry, scheduling bicentennial organizational meetings, and taking care of reservations for the upcoming Fayette County Bicentennial workshop to be held Wednesday.

In addition to her 1 to 4 p.m. duties as the bicentennial commission's secretary, Miss Smith maintains a busy school schedule. Her mornings are occupied by classes in shorthand, office practice, and cooperative office education which last until 11:20 a.m. Though her days are well-filled at present, she hopes to save enough money this summer to buy a horse, allowing her to indulge more fully in her favorite hobby of horseback riding.

CYNTHIA SMITH

In keeping with the spirit that is an integral part of bicentennial efforts, Miss Smith has crocheted and afghan sofa covering colored in the appropriate colors. With the expected offers of volunteer help, and community interest in future events such as the Wednesday workshop, she may have to give up any hopes of becoming the Betsy Ross of the Afghan circuit.

See Miami Valley economic upturn

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — A Wright State University economist has forecast good news for the Miami Valley area.

Dr. Mark Z. Fabrycy, professor of economics, has developed an econometric model which predicts changes in the Dayton economy. He says for the first quarter of 1976, total employment in the area will increase about one per cent. Fabrycy expects a decrease in the size of the labor force by 2.25 per cent and an unemployment rate decrease.

Bloody massacre in Ohio marked at Tuscarawas County

By The Associated Press

The evil as well as the good must be recorded in the pages of Ohio's heritage, and perhaps the darkest page of all was written March 8, 1782, at Gnadenhutten, Tuscarawas County.

The Revolutionary War fighting had ended on the Eastern Seaboard with the victory at Yorktown in the autumn of 1781, but it continued for another bloody year on the Ohio frontier.

In the spring of 1782, settlers along the western borders of Pennsylvania were attacked by roving bands of Ohio Indians. The outposts, enraged by the massacres of the settlers, raised an armed force of Pennsylvanians under Col. David Williamson. The force, made up of raw, undisciplined volunteers, was sent into the wilderness to seek out the raiders and punish them.

For some reason Williamson and his men headed for the innocent, converted Moravian Indians at Gnadenhutten on the Tuscarawas. They found the Christian Indians at work in their fields and after decoying them to the mission settlement, imprisoned them in the Council House. After this they held court and decided by majority vote to execute the entire group. Ninety Indians were killed, including 34 children, and only two boys escaped to warn other Christian Indians at nearby Schoenbrunn.

Said one historian: "The manner in which the unsuspecting Christian Indians were brutally massacred is unequaled in American history; some were speared to death, others shot, some scalped alive, many clubbed and tomahawked."

The total cost of Ohio's old canal system was about $16 million for the 788 miles.

'Red' Ash pushing Canton team to top

Ash's current team, defeated just once in 16 games, has taken over the ninth spot in Class AAA this week in The Associated Press' Ohio scholastic ratings.

The big, likeable Ash ranks second in victories among the state's high school basketball coaches. He has a lifetime record of 639 victories and 162 defeats. Paul Walker of sixthranked Middletown is No. 1 with 786-168.

South was only one of two new schools appearing among the Top Tens compiled from balloting by a statewide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

The other newcomer was Coshocton in Class AA. The Redskins (13-1) now rank 10th in the middle division.

None is being pressed. McKinley (17-0), winner of 34 straight regular season games over the last two years, owns a 30-point lead over runnerup Barberton.

St. John (15-0) is 39 points up on No. 2 Warsaw River View. Indian Valley South (16-0) commands a 56-point margin over its closest pursurer, Morral Ridgedale.

Middletown and Cleveland Heights made the biggest advances in Class AAA, the Middies jumping two spots to sixth and Heights leaping two positions to seventh.

Columbus Linden-McKinley, the defending state tournament champion upset at Columbus Whetstone, took the biggest tumble, from seventh to 10th among the large schools. Cleveland St. Ignatius lost its first game to Cleveland LincolnWest, dropping from sixth to eighth.

In Class AA, defeats cost Ironton and Magnolia Sandy Valley. Ironton went from sixth to ninth after bowing for the first time this season to Jackson. Sandy Valley, beaten by Canal Fulton Northwest, fell from ninth to 11h.

In Class A, Cincinnati Lockland continued to advance. Lockland made its first appearance in the Top Ten last week and this week surged from ninth to sixth. Sandusky St. Mary, losing for the second time in 15 games, tumbled all the way from fifth to 10th.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Here's how a statewide panel of sports writers and broadcasters rates Ohio high school basketball teams this week for The Associated Press (10 points for first to 1 point for 10th):

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

Circleville needs only a win tonight over the Hillsboro Indians to insure itself of at least a tie for the South Central Ohio League championship.

Washington C.H., the only other team still in contention for an undisputed league crown, will host Miami Trace, and the Blue Lions will have to avenge an early season rout at the hands of the Panthers to challenge the league leaders.

Unioto will visit Wilmington and Greenfield McClain will travel outside the league to face Leesburg-Fairfield.

CIRCLEVILLE AT HILLSBORO

The Tigers looked anything but sharp Saturday night against Miami Trace, when the Panthers put a scare into the league leaders without the benefit of two of their leading scorers.

Hillsboro's top two scorers, Tim Fuller and Rick Seeling, will be ready to play and the hopes of Washington C.H. are riding with the Indians.

Circleville beat the Indians by nine points earlier this season, but tonight Hillsboro will have the home-court advantage which could make for a close contest.

Tiger center George Moore will be guarding Fuller tonight, and if anyone in the league can hold the Indian pivotman below his 10-point average, its Moore.

This should make 6-3 forward Rick Seeling the player that can make or break the Indians. If he owns a hot hand tonight, an upset is entirely possible.

MIAMI TRACE AT WASHINGTON

The Blue Lions have to win this contest, and despite three key injuries the Panthers will be tough to beat.

Miami Trace completely dominated the first meeting between the Fayette County squads, but that was nearly two months ago. Now, the Blue Lions are playing excellent basketball having won six of their last seven outings with only a two-point overtime loss to Chillicothe breaking the string.

The Panthers will possible be without starters Allan Conner and Rod Garringer while reserve Gary English probably won't dress out for tonights game because of a back injury.

This will definitely hamper the Panther fastbreak offense which was the key weapon against the Blue Lions earlier this season.

The Panther injuries, the homecourt advantage and a shot at the SCOL crown, not to mention the memories of an 83-64 loss earlier this season, should be enough factors to spell a Blue Lion victory.

UNIOTO AT WILMINGTON

Unioto has been on somewhat of a hot streak. The Shermans still haven't won a game this season, but they have been getting close.

There has been less than a ten-point winning margin in each of the Tanks last two games against respectable competition such as Greenfield McClain and Madison Plains.

On the other hand, Wilmington has been on a cold streak losing its last four league contests.

The last time these two teams met it ended in a 15-13 Hurricane victory. It may be close again this time, but Unioto has thrown out the stall which will make the point totals considerably higher.

GREENFIELD AT FAIRFIELD

McClain will definitely have its hands full tonight when they travel to Leesburg. Fairfield is 16-1 on the season—the only loss being in overtime to Hillsboro—and is presently ranked 12th in the Associated Press class A poll.

The Tigers have lost four of their last six league contests and Fairfield isn't the type of team to break out of a slump against.

Germans, Soviets take gold

INNSBRUCK (AP) — The Soviet Union and East Germany, locked in a battle for supremecy of these 12th Winter Olympics, captured one gold medal each today as Russia's Raisa Smetanina won the 10-kilometer (6.2 miles) cross country ski race and East Germans Hans Rinn and Norbert Hahn took the double-seater luge event.

Helena Takalo of Finland, who won a gold medal Saturday in the five-kilometer cross country, took the silver medal at 10-kilometers and Russia's Galina Kulakova, deprived of a medal Monday on a doping charge, won the bronze.

Miss Smetanina, a 24-year-old teacher who finished second in the five-kilometer event, led virtually the entire race and was clocked in 30 minutes, 13.41 seconds. Miss Takalo was timed in 30:14.28 and Mrs. Kulakova, deprived of her bronze in the five-kilometer because she took ephedrine, an illegal drug, to combat a cold the night before the race, clocked 30:38.61.

Rinn and Hahn clocked a track record of 42.77 seconds on their first of two runs down the 870-meter run for an aggregate time of 1:25.60. Hans Bradner and Balthasar Schwarm of West Germany won the silver medal in 1:25.88 and Rudolf Schmid and Franz Schachner of Austria won the bronze in 1:25.91.

The results left the powerful Soviets atop the medal standings with nine gold medals and 18 over-all, followed by the East Germans with six gold and 13 total medals and the upstart Americans with a gold, three silver and three bronze.

Today's competition also included completion of the men's giant slalom and the 500-meter speed skating event.

U.S. takes skate medal

INNSBRUCK (AP) — Evgeniy Kulikov of the Soviet Union won the gold medal in the 500 meter men's speed skating event in the 12th Winter Olympic Games today.

Kulikov's winning time was 39.17 seconds followed by Muratov's 39.25 and Immerfall's 39.54.

Hoosiers trounce Michigan State

By The Associated Press

Indiana center Kent Benson is the kind of player coaches drool over.

He stands 6 feet 11, weighs a muscular 235 pounds. He's intimidating under the boards, mobile enough for any running game and as good a jump shooter as most forwards. Defensively, he's learning to hold his own at the Bobby Knight school of man-to-man combat, as fine a proving ground as you'll find anywhere.

He comes up with the clutch play, like the spectacular tap-in at the buzzer against Michigan Saturday which kept Indiana's unbeaten streak alive. He's improved steadily year by year, to the point where he's now the equal of any big man in the college ranks.

"I just go out and try to play hard night in and night out," Benson said Monday night after scoring a career-high 38 points to lead unbeaten, top-ranked Indiana to its 20th victory of the season, an 85-70 Big Ten triumph over Michigan State.

Benson and his Hoosier mates have got a pretty powerful juggernaut on the move — 20-0 overall, 11-0 in the Big Ten, 30 straight conference victories and 50 consecutive regular season triumphs.

Benson's performance overshadowed a 40-point effort by Terry Furlow, the Michigan State forward who leads the Big Ten in scoring. The Indiana center was nearly unstoppable against the smaller Spartans, especially in the second half after three Michgian State starters fouled out.

Indiana went ahead to stay with an 11-2 spurt for a 33-28 advantage. The Hoosiers led by nine at the half and then drew away.

In other games involving Top Twenty teams, No. 5 Rutgers beat Delaware 110-87, No. 8 Tennessee defeated Vanderbilt 73-59, No. 10 Notre Dame topped St. Bonaventure 95-80, No. 11 Alabama edged Florida 79-73, No. 16 Michigan beat Ohio State 90-66 and No. 19 North Texas State was upset by Memphis State 111-93.

Rutgers remained undefeated by routing Delaware for its 20th triumph of the season, reaching 100 points for the eighth time. Hollis Copeland and Phil Sellers were the big guns for the winners, Copeland scoring 22 points and pulling down 11 rebounds and Sellers adding 17 points, 18 rebounds and nine assists.

By The Associated Press

Unbeaten Indiana received all but one first-place ballot and remained the overwhelming leader in this week's Associated Press college basketball poll. The lone dissenter cast his No. 1 vote for Rutgers, one of the nation's two other major undefeated teams.

Indiana and Rutgers both raised their season records to 20-0 with victories Monday night, Indiana beating Big Ten rival Michigan State 85-70 and Rutgers routing outmanned Delaware 110-87.

This week's poll, however, was based on games played through Sunday. In last week's action, Indiana pulled out a 72-67 overtime victory over Michigan while Rutgers posted triumphs over Princeton, West Virginia and Navy.

The nation's only other major unbeaten club, Western Michigan at 18-0, moved up two spots in the latest ratings to No. 15.

Indiana headed the list with 1,278 points on 63 first-place votes and one second from the nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Marquette, 18-1 after beating Manhattan 78-59 and Detroit 68-66 last week, remained far back in second place with 1,093 points. North Carolina, 18-2 and Maryland, 17-3, moved up one place each to third and fourth, respectively, and Rutgers climbed from seventh to fifth.

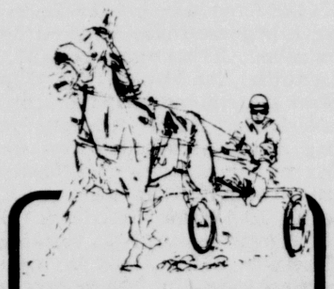

Nevada-Las Vegas, third last week, dropped down to No. 7 after suffering its first loss of the season, at the hands of Pepperdine by a 93-91 score Friday night.

North Carolina received 950 points, Maryland 772 and Rutgers 756.

UCLA climbed from ninth place to sixth after upsetting Washington, which had been No. 6 last week but dropped down to No. 9. Nevada-Las Vegas was seventh, followed by Tennessee, eighth last week; Washington, and Notre Dame, 11th last week.

Alabama headed the Second Ten, followed by North Carolina State, Cincinnati, Missouri, Western Michigan, Michigan, St. John's, Virginia Tech and Centenary and North Texas State, tied for 19th.

Michigan is the lone newcomer to the list following its impressive showing against powerful Indiana, with Princeton — No. 15 last week — dropping off after losing to Rutgers 75-62.

The Blue Lion yearlings grabbed a 14-4 first quarter lead and then widened the margin to 20 points at halftime to put the contest out of reach.

Miami Trace got balanced scoring from five players but none were able to break into double figures. John Persinger and Mark Dunn led the Panther attack with seven points apiece.

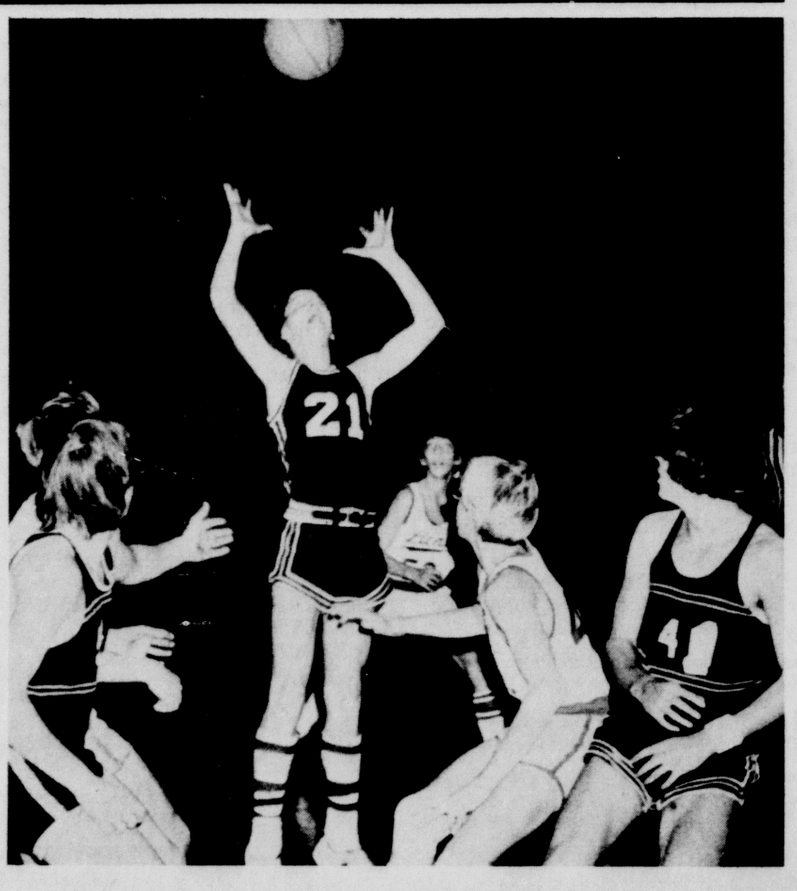

Coach Rick Crooks' Blue Lion squad will try to even its season record at 7-7 when they travel to Hillsboro on Thursday.

Miami Trace High School will host the South Central Ohio League Freshmen tournament this Saturday with seven league schools entered. Only Unioto will not be present for the tournament.

Bill curbs pupil data

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Information about school pupils could not be released without parents' consent under a bill approved 26-1 Monday night by the Senate.

Among its provisions, a special section prohibits giving out such information that could provide mailing lists for any person or group "for use in a profit-making plan or activity."

Sen. M. Ben Gaeth, R-1 Defiance, opposed it, he said, because the bill could keep information about disciplinary actions away from potential employers.

In other action as the Senate held a brief floor session opening this week's legislative activities, senators sent the House 25-0 a proposed constitutional amendment clarifying certification procedures for statewide election results.

If approved by the House, the amendment would go on the November ballot, according to its chief sponsor, Sen. Gene Slagle, D-26 Galion.

The House returned from weekend recess today.

By The Associated Press

Soviet-backed Angolan and Cuban forces are making drives toward Luso, in east central Angola, and south along the coast to the ports of Lobito and Benguela following capture of Huambo, the capital of the two Western-supported factions in the Angolan civil war, a British correspondent reported today from Luanda.

If the two-prong advance is successful, "there appears a strong likelihood that the FNLA-UNITA forces inside Angola will collapse," Jane Bergerol of the London Financial Times reported.

The warring factions are the Popular Movement, or MPLA, which is armed by the Soviet Union and has an estimated 11,000 Cubans fighting for it, and the National Union (UNITA) and National Front (FNLA), which have been supplied by the United States, South Africa, Zaire and Zambia and have several hundred European mercenaries fighting for them.

Nicholas Ashford of the Times of London, who left Angola this week and went to Johannesburg, reported that South African forces which pulled back from central Angola recently are establishing a defense line against the MPLA about 30 miles inside the former Portuguese territory.

He said South Africa is believed to have about 5,000 men in the area.

Hepatitis continues

Cincinnati Health Commissioner Dr. Arnold Leff reported the number of cases has increased at the school to 17 with three more reported over the weekend.

"I believe that all of the children were infected at the same time," Leff said, adding that the incubation period of the liver ailment is 2-6 weeks.

Cause of the outbreak remains unknown, Leff said.

Meanwhile, Leff said, there is little anyone can do except comply with basic cleanliness measures at the school. Families of the infected children were given injections against the disease, he said.

The water system was given a clean bill of health, he said.

When Glamor Goes to your Head

Here's How
When You Ponder Buying Land

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Is it a mistake to put the entire savings into land until you can afford to build a house, even though it may be years away?

That question asked by a young couple gets a variety of answers from people who have bought land on a similar basis.

But they agree that the answer depends entirely on why you want the land now and when you can afford to build the house.

If land is a good investment and can be unloaded easily if you decide not to build, fine.

If it was a bargain and gives satisfactory meanwhile use — camping, bird watching or whatever or if it is in a location that you must be in where land is scarce — why not.

If you can afford to build on it within a reasonable time, great.

Those are good reasons to buy the land, but there are a lot of drawbacks to owning it if it is just bought to hold until you can afford to build many years from now, even if the taxes are low, these knowledgeable people point out.

For one thing, it is expensive to build a house even if you do it yourself. In an inflationary period how long would it take to raise the money for the house?

Land is often bought because it is cheap and has conservation-appeal but young people forget they are going to use it as a house site, too. Then they perhaps need to remove trees, build a road, connect electricity and so on. The land may be in a remote area with a beautiful view, uncontaminated air, pure water. But to get your money's worth, a house may be needed.

A swamp, marsh or pond may be an environmental asset attracting birds, waterfowl, little animals, but the big consideration must be: is there a good site for the house? If it must be placed far from these attractions so that they will not be seen, it may not fulfill the aim of a bucolic view after all.

Towns are eyeing marshes, swamps and other watering spots. Whereas formerly they leveled some of these natural wonders into parking lots, they are now trying to protect them, they say. This means that land purchased for building may be subjected to scrutiny as town fathers decide whether the house and its septic system and so on will be detrimental to that choice environment. What prevails when the land is bought really may be no indication of how a town acts tomorrow. Laws are being enacted every day.

Most people agree, too, that land prices have remained status quo — there are few bargains unless there are some drawbacks. If there is a great deal of acreage the house no doubt will be away from all conveniences, including good rail transportation.

Some young people have made wise investments, holding out for some kind of little house to go with land. One couple managed to get an early dwelling in disrepair. They remodeled it and used it as a meanwhile house. After five years they can afford to build a small house on two other acres of the land and already have a buyer for the old house they've made livable. This is an ideal investment that takes careful planning. They did make some sacrifices, but they had something to build their dreams on and their project was debt-controlled.

If two people have scrimped for a long time to own a home, chances are they will not be satisfied indefinitely owning the land without a house. Then, too, if they find a home they like and wish to abandon the land, they will need to find a buyer, perhaps quickly. It may not be easy.

That may even be the main consideration in buying the land: could you sell it if you wanted to? One good indication might be to inquire how long it has been on the market.

Not one, but two! One in the family room, which has door to outside. The other in the large living room. Also, two bedrooms, modern bath, dining room, large kitchen, large basement and two-car garage. The Lennox forced air furnace and Pella windows keep this fine home comfy and warm.

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — Every time I paint — and I'll be doing it again soon — the paint collects in the small rim around the top of the can. I try to get it out by dipping a small brush in it and then wiping it on an old newspaper. It never quite succeeds, because when I go to use the paint again weeks or months later, I find that some of the paint in the rim has hardened and that the cover never was really on tight enough. Is there some easier and better way to handle this?

A. — When you first open the can, punch holes into the rim. This has to be done very carefully so that you don't knock over the can. Some persons find it helpful to pour out some of the paint before doing this. The holes can be punched with a hammer and a nailset or some other pointed tool that will go through metal without too much trouble. As you work, the paint that collects in the rim will fall through the holes and return to the can. Then, if there are a few drops still in the rim, remove them the way you have always done.

Q. — I understand that it is possible to make flagstones for a walkway without buying the ready-made stones. Can you tell me how this is done?

A. — What you actually will be making are concrete stones that can be used for walking on. Dig to about 4 inches. The size and shape of the stone depends on your preference, but make sure the excavation is level. Pour in a concrete mix and level it off with a wooden float. Repeat this operation as many times as necessary to complete the walkway. There's no need to try to make all the stones the same size; in fact, variations will make the walkway more interesting. After about five or six hours, wet down each stone. Do this a couple of times a day for several days. This "curing" process will keep the concrete from drying out too quickly.

Q. — One of your readers asked about marbleizing wood furniture. I have discovered an easy method. Brush on the antiquing glaze as usual. Lay a large piece of plastic, such as a laundry bag, over the entire surface to be marbleized. Pick it up. Presto — a marble finish. If not satisfied with the first attempt, brush the glaze out and keep at it until you have the finish desired. You can even try squishing the plastic around gently with your finger tips.

A. — Thanks.

Adhesions After Surgery?

Mrs. B.A., S.C.

Dear Mrs. A.:

Adhesions are small bands of firm, fibrous tissue. These bands can occur after surgery anywhere within the abdomen.

Infection or inflammation of the thin lining that surrounds the abdominal cavity is sometimes followed by adhesions.

Adhesions do not always follow abdominal surgery. Some people seem to be more prone to adhesions than others. The delicacy with which surgery is performed today is the major reason why adhesions occur so much less frequently than they formerly did.

The only time that adhesions present a problem is when they surround a portion of the intestinal tract and interfere with its normal function.

Basically, however, adhesions that produce no symptoms are rarely dangerous.

Mr. T.B.V., Mich.

Dear Mr. V.:

The teeth, the gums, the sinuses, the tonsils, the appendix and the gall bladder may harbor bacteria.

Sometimes these germs may enter the bloodstream, travel to a distant part of the body, and implant themselves in an organ.

Those doctors who subscribe to the theory of "focus of infection" believe that some forms of arthritis, bladder infections and kidney disease may be explained in this way.

Whether or not one "believes" in this theory is not nearly as important as what one should do about it. For it is undeniable that infection anywhere in the body should be treated and eliminated.

Miss L.K., Calif.

Dear Miss K.:

It is a misconception to believe that excess weight and fat beneath the skin can be eliminated by rubbing and massage.

It is true that massage can give one an invigorating feeling and better muscle tone. But do not delude yourself into believing that this is a reducing technique. Despite the many new ideas that appeal to those anxious to lose weight, a single law is undeniable:

Opening lead - king of diamonds.

Let's assume you're in seven hearts and West leads a diamond. There seems to be nothing much to play and, if you are endowed with a happy-go-lucky nature, you win the diamond with the ace and play the A-K of trumps. West shows out and you go down one, losing a trump trick to East.

You can of course attribute the outcome to bad luck, since the odds were about 3 to 1 against losing a trump trick by this method of play. But if you consider the matter more objectively, it turns out that you should have made the contract by adopting a slightly different line of play.

Instead of playing a trump at trick two — which seems a normal thing to do — it is better to ruff a diamond and then play the A-K of trumps.

When you learn of the 4-1 trump division, you can now take steps to try to eliminate East's seemingly certain trump trick. You stop playing trumps and instead cash the A-K of clubs, lead a spade to the jack, ruff a diamond, then play a spade to the queen and ruff a club.

As a result of this series of maneuvers, your last three cards are the king of spades and Q-10 of trumps. Dummy has the ace of spades, a diamond and a club; East has the nine of spades and J-4 of trumps.

When you play a spade to the ace and lead a diamond or a club from dummy, East's J-4 of trumps succumb to your Q-10.

The success of this method of play can be traced back to the farsighted play of ruffing a diamond at trick two to allow for the possibility that East might have been dealt four trumps to the jack. If you don't take this ruff, you wind up leading from your hand instead of dummy at trick twelve.

Man finally gets medal from war

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — A medal earned while flying combat missions with the 14th Air Force over China more than 30 years ago has finally been picked up by a Mansfield man.

Since his 1945 discharge Robert E. Luman had been trying to track down the headquarters of the 14th Air Force Association, composed of China-Burma-India Theater veterans of World War II.

Luman finally got in contact with the organization through a newspaper article sent him by his sister in Zanesville. The story not only provided the whereabouts of the organization but revealed the existence of a medal he did not know he had qualified for.

The award—the China War Memorial Medal—has become better known as the "lost decoration" of World War II. It was authorized by the Chinese government near the end of the war, but the rush to return home apparently jumbled the records of those who were to receive it.

Some veterans had notations in their service records listing the award, but none had ever seen it.

Last year, after persistent research by the veterans organization, the medals were distributed to many Americans. Luman learned of his eligibility through the newspaper article.

Now a sales engineer for Ohio Brass Co., the Zanesville native adds the Chinese medal to the list of awards he earned, including the Flying Cross.

He plans to attend annual conventions of the association, although he said he'll skip this year's get-together which is in Taiwan.

Gunman slays American

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A gunman shot and killed an American owner of two bars on Bangkok's main entertainment strip over the weekend.

Police said Clifford Stroup, owner of the Cloud Nine and Texan bars on Patpong Road, was struck by a hail of bullets Sunday while he and two female companions were watching a movie at a private residence. One of his companions was slightly wounded.

The motive of the killing was not known but police said they suspected it might have been linked with his business or a love affair.

Stroup, 42, was originally from Stow, Ohio. He had lived in Thailand for several years.

Eye job action against state

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Officials of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes from around Ohio were seeking to set a meeting date for consideration of "a severe job action against the state...," an AFSCME statement said.

William E. Garnes, AFSCME area director, said the preparations had been provoked by refusal of the department of mental health and mental retardation to recognize a need for problem solving mechanisms at some state institutions.

Garnes said by problems he meant disregard for employes.

A meeting with Moritz has been scheduled for Wednesday and probably would be held before state AFSCME heads gather, he added.

The cornerstone of Ohio's Statehouse was put in place July 4, 1839. The building was completed 20 years later.

Well, you couldn't ask for better picture weather than we had last week with the ice covering everything in such a way that the lights at night were reflected in the streets, the trees, even sides of buildings, creating a fantasy world that seemed to be just made for the alert cameraman. Of course, every time of year has its good and bad photographic situations, but last week was something else.

Last week in this space we were on the subject of photo textbooks. There's one excellent book I left out that should be mentioned. The author has done everything he could to make it fun reading and not textbookish, but none the less it's packed with good, sound photographic information. The title, UNDERSTANDING PHOTOGRAPHY, the author, Carl Shipman, the price is $5.95 in paperback.

Want to know something? If you haven't tuned in to this guy Alan Stang who has the ALAN STANG REPORT each morning at 8 on WCHO, wise up and listen. Our book department has sold more books and pamphlets by Stang than any other author. Stans is probably the sharpest investigative reporter in American today. We're lucky to get a speaker like Stang to come here to Washington. He'll be speaking on PROGRESSIVE EDUCATION: A DANGER TO YOUR CHILD. The time: Tuesday, March 2, 8 p.m. The place: Eastside School Gymnasium. Tickets are $1.50 and you can get them at the camera shop as well as several other places on Court Street. If you have children in school you won't want to miss this talk.

No injuries reported in three car crashes

A rear-end collision and a hit-skip accident were reported by Washington C. H. police today. The Fayette County Sheriff's Department investigated one traffic mishap Tuesday morning.

A rear-end collision involving cars driven by Danny A. Mongold, 18, Greenfield, and Ricky L. Curnette, 21, of 1103 S. Elm St., occurred at 8 p.m. Monday at the intersection of Elm and John streets. City police stated Mongold reached down to change citizen band radio channels and struck the Curnette auto. He was charged with failure to maintain an assured clear distance ahead.

A car belonging to Glen A. Park, Reynoldsburg, was struck by an unidentified driver at 10:09 p.m. Monday while parked in the municipal parking lot on Main Street. Police estimated damage as minor.

A car driven by Lisa M. Blair, 17, Milledgeville, was involved in an accident at 7:50 a.m. Tuesday on Bloomingburg-New Holland Road, just east of the Bush Road intersection. Fayette County Sheriff's deputies reported Ms. Blair attempted to pass two vehicles, one of them being a car driven by Rodney L. Garringer, 18, Jeffersonville, which started to pass also. Ms. Blair swerved off the left side of the roadway and struck a culvert and culvert marker and then spun around. Her car was moderately damaged. Garringer's auto was not damaged for the two cars never came in contact with each other. Deputies reported no injuries and stated the Washington C. H. Fire Department was summoned to the scene to stand by in case gasoline from the Blair car's ruptured gas tank presented a fire hazard. It did not ignite.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The American Party has unofficially returned to Ohio's election ballot after being disqualified in 1972 for not receiving enough votes.

Official recognition will not come for about two weeks, after signatures have been verified. However, the petitions contained 7,334 more signatures than were required, apparently enough to compensate for any invalid signatures.

Cleveland attorney Arthur Cain delivered the petitions to Brown's office on Monday afternoon, only 1½ hours before the deadline for filing them. He was accompanied by party supporters wearing red, white and blue buttons reading, "The Tide is Turning."

Cain said the party probably will run between four and seven congressional candidates and will work for the American Independence party candidate for president.

The national candidate will be chosen in a national convention in July, he said. An August state convention will make the final selections of state party candidates, he said.

The national party was begun in 1968 by Alabama Gov. George Wallace when he made his first third-party bid for the presidency. In 1972, however, the party was badly hurt when Wallace was forced to withdraw from the presidential race after an assassination attempt which left him crippled.

Shoplift charge filed

A 16-year-old Wilmington boy was arrested by Fayette County Sheriff's deputies and charged with shoplifting Monday afternoon

Deputies reported the youth attempted to steal one package of chrome whee! locks valued at $5.01 and two packages of chrome wheel nuts valued at $3.54 from Seaway, CCC-Highway-W. The boy allegedly concealed the merchandise in his pocket and left the store without paying for it. The youth has been released to his parents.

Robin A. Cotton, 10, of 1203 Willard St., was bitten in the back by a dog at 7:10 p.m. Monday while playing on Center Street. She was treated and released at Fayette Memorial Hospital, Washington C.H. police reported today.

Showers may linger over southern Ohio Wednesday, but clear skies are in store for the remainder of the state.

The showers were forecast to began in northern Ohio Tuesday afternoon ahead of a cold front moving rapidly southward across the state.

The mercury soared into the upper 50s and low 60s in southern Ohio Tuesday. It was chillier in the northern counties where readings remained in the mid 30s and 40s.

Temperatures will be cooler Wednesday with highs ranging from the upper 30s north to the upper 40s south.

Fair Thursday, a chance of rain or snow Friday and Saturday. Highs 35 to 55. Lows in the upper teens and the 20s.

Prayer breakfast draws 35 persons

Thirty-five persons attended the teen prayer breakfast at the South Side Church of Christ Tuesday morning.

"A Walk Through the Biblical Gardens" was the topic used by the Rev. Charles J. Richmond for the meditation time. Diana Davis and Lisa Rinehart, sophomores at Washington Senior High School, led the singing accompanied by Marilyn Creamer, a junior at Miami Trace High School.

Following the breakfast, prepared by Francis Starkey, Lavonne Creamer, Viva Johnson, and Mary Ann Rudduck, John Fields, a junior at Washington Senior High School, spoke to the group on "Being Humble." Linda Hollingsworth, a senior at Washington Senior High School, closed the session with prayer.

The next prayer breakfast will be held Tuesday, Feb. 24 at 6:45 a.m. There'll be no prayer breakfast next Tuesday.

All teens, grades nine through twelve, are welcome.

Holland's royalty in trouble?

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (AP) — The charge that Prince Bernhard got $1.1 million to influence the Dutch government to buy Lockheed planes is the fourth major furor to hit the House of Orange since Queen Juliana came to the throne in 1948.

The extent of Juliana's fortune has never been officially disclosed, but an unofficial estimate in the late 1960's indicated her bank balance then was around $100 million.

In addition, she has sizable holdings in the giant Royal Dutch Shell oil company, the Algemene Bank Nederland, the country's largest commercial bank, and other major Dutch companies.

One financial expert said her private fortune must be "huge."

The first big scandal in her reign came in the 1950's, when she and Bernhard turned to a faith healer, Greet Hofmans, in the hope that she could help their partially blind youngest daughter, Princess Christina.

Miss Hofmans became the queen's confidante, was reported advising her on matters of state and was dubbed the Rasputin of the Dutch court. Bernhard objected, and there were rumors of divorce and abdication. Unconfirmed reports said Juliana and her husband lived in separate wings of Soestdijk Palace for six months, communicating only by notes.

The crisis ended in 1956 with a statement from the royal couple that they had resolved their differences and "look forward to the future with confidence." Bernhard banned Miss Hofmans from the palace, and Princess Christina's sight improved under conventional treatment.

The next bombshell came in 1964 when Princess Irene, the couple's second daughter, became a Roman Catholic to marry the Carlist pretender to the Spanish throne, Prince Hugo Carlos of Bourbon-Parma. The Protestant Dutch were shocked.

Irene renounced her rights to the Dutch throne and was married in Rome. Her parents stayed home and watched the ceremony on television.

Public opposition was aroused by another royal romance in 1966 when Crown Princess Beatrix became engaged to a West German diplomat, Claus von Amsberg. Objections were voiced to his teen-age membership in Nazi youth and labor organizations during the war, and there were smoke bombs and hostile demonstrations outside the church during the wedding ceremony in Amsterdam.

The hostility evaporated the next year when Beatrix gave birth to a son, the first Prince of Orange in the line of succession since 1884.

The earlier crises did no damage to the popularity of the queen and her husband and the widespread affection for her. The effect of the Lockheed scandal depends on the investigation which the government has promised. Bernhard, denying he received any money, said he welcomed a full inquiry.

The population in Ohio in 1790 was 3,000; in 1800 it was 45,365; in 1810 it was 230,760, and in 1880 3,198,062, of which 2,803,114 were natives of the state. In 1880 79,900 residents were black.

Washington: first in war and peace

When the news of George Washington's death on December 19, 1799 was received, Congress adopted a resolution honoring him, ending with these now-famous words:

"A citizen first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

George Wasington was indeed a first citizen to the young country that he led to victory against the British and later led as its first president.

The greatness of this early American was not immediately apparent in his life. The son of a Virginia landowner, Washington received erratic schooling, his chief education being in the management of his father's holdings. He learned the elements of surveying at an early age; he was able to plot and measure neighboring fields by the age of 14.

He became a surveyor by profession and it was through his surveying trips, carrying him into the wilderness, that his character was further formed, as he developed the resourcefulness and endurance necessary to surmount the rugged journeys.

At 20, he inherited Mount Vernon and spent most of the next 20 years living the life of a prosperous plantation manager, in addition to being a military adjutant.

As time went on, Washington became more and more active in the military, being made commander of Virginia's troops in 1755, at the age of 23. However, he resigned his commission in 1758, just before his marriage to Martha Dandridge Custis, and aside from being a member of the house of burgesses, Washington lived in the manner of a landowner in the ensuing years.

Even though he belonged to the house of burgesses, Washington displayed little interest in affairs of state. But in May of 1765, Patrick Henry introduced resolutions against the, Stamp Act, after which Washington took the side of the Whigs, the colonists opposing British injustices.

He was elected to the first Continental Congress by his fellow Virginians, and when the Congress met in Philadelphia in 1774, Washington was dressed in full uniform; indicating his attitude toward further attempts at petitioning the Crown — to a previous revolutionary legislature he had declared, "I will raise one thousand men, subsist them at my own expense, and march myself at their head for the relief of Boston."

Despite this rhetoric, Washington was first opposed to independence, but he was just as determined not to submit to loss of what he termed "valuable rights and privileges."

Called upon by Congress to take charge of the military forces of all the colonies, Washington took command on July 2, 1775 of a motley group of Yankees. His success in forging that undisciplined band into a victorious army that defeated the British at Yorktown in 1781 is a measure of his greatness.

His duty done, Washington expected to retire once again to his Mount Vernon home. But his valiant and brilliant leadership throughout the war years made him the unanimous choice of the electors in peace, and Washington became the first American president on April 30, 1789.

I regret that I have but one life to lose for my country.

—Nathan Hale

Early American leaders saw cotton as route to economic independence

A number of early American leaders recognized that cotton could be an important factor in achieving the economic independence so essential to supporting this country's political freedom.

In 1776 when the British House of Commons was considering repeal of the Stamp Act and questioned whether American colonists could clothe themselves without aid from England, Benjamin Franklin said Virginians could "very well clothe themselves with linen and cotton of their own raising for the rest of the year."

The National Cotton Council points out that, largely due to Franklin's influence, a calico printworks was established near Philadelphia in 1772. It was under the direction of John Hewson, who later fought in the Revolution.

Martha Washington personally visited the factory and ordered some special prints to which her husband George later pointed with pride. Washington had established a weaving house at Mount Vernon as early as 1767 and the cloth made there for about 25 neighboring families included 300 yards of cotton.

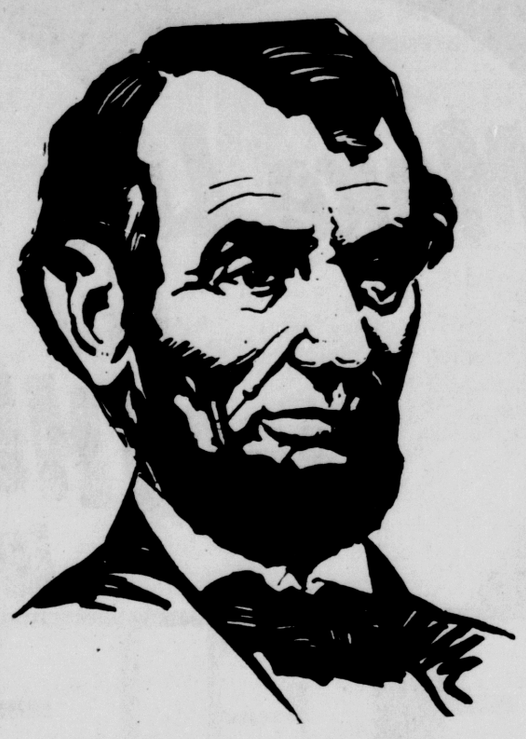

Alexander Hamilton, who was born on a West Indies cotton plantation and became the nation's first treasury secretary, believed cotton could be a profitable commercial crop for America and worked to promote its introduction.

In 1774, he predicted that several of the Southern colonies might one day clothe the whole continent. And by the following year, the crop's production was sufficient to lead Hamilton to suggest that cotton factories be placed alongside the cottonfields.

Thomas Jefferson wrote in 1786 that the four southern-most states were making a great deal of homespun cotton which he described as being "as well manufactured as the calicoes of Europe." And that same year, James Madison declared there was "no reason to doubt that the United States will one day become a great cotton-producing country."

Tench Coxe, a Philadelphian who was a delegate to the Continental Congress and later Assistant Secretary of the U.S. Treasury, did much to encourage cotton's cultivation and its manufacture. In 1786 he interested planters of five southern states in cotton cultivation.

Coxe also operated the nation's first spinning jenny at a plant in Philadelphia which employed 400 women in the spinning and weaving of cotton. He is said to have "emptied his pockets" to import English textile machinery and laborers to run the equipment. Largely at Coxe's urging, Congress imposed a duty of three cents a pound on cotton imports in 1789.

ABE LINCOLN AT GETTYSBURG

"Four Score and seven years ago, our fathers brought forth upon this continent, a new nation, conceived in Liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived, and so dedicated, can long endure.

We are met on a great battle-field of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of it, as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that this nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But in a larger sense we cannot dedicate-we cannot consecrate-we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they have, thus far, so nobly advanced. It's rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us-that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they here gave the last full measure of devotion-that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation under god shall have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people, for the prople, shall not perish from the earth."

That was all. One observer noted that "Lincoln had finished almost before he began;; such was the brevity of his speech. The applause for the President was late and somewhat scattered. Several photographers who had expected him to speak longer were caught still preparing their equipment.

Reactions to the President's speech varied widely both among those present and in the newspaper accounts. Most of the leading newspapers of the time published it but did not seem too greatly impressed. Editorial comment generally depended on how the particular commentator felt about Lincoln and the War. Few grasp the true meaning of the words.

Time and Lincoln's subsequent martyrdom have done more than anything else to immortalize what he said on that November day. In less than 500 words Lincoln spoke not only for his own time, but for the future as well. The nation's strength lay in a continuing rededication to the principles and ideals upon which it was founded. In a larger sense Lincoln's message was universal in that democracy contained the best hope for all mankind. No one realized it in November 1863, but he was speaking for the ages.

Who'd want to invest in a bunch of revolutionaries?

But then our revolutionary army beat the British at Saratoga in 1777.

So faith was won as well as a battle. And investments in our government's securities started picking up.

It took courage to take stock in America back then. But it paid off.

An American pilgrimage

Covered wagons will tour each of the 50 states and meet in Valley Forge, Pennsylvania on July 3, 1976.

Americans from all states and walks of life are taking part in the pilgrimage. Many are riding with one of the five wagon train segments, while others are becoming involved in the wagon encampment activities, which include a special Bicentennial musical show.

Another way for people to participate in the pilgrimage is through the scroll program: by signing a scroll pledging to rededicate themselves to the principles upon which our nation was founded.

The pilgrimage's official outfitter is Wrangler, leading maker of jeans and sportswear, which is providing retailers copies of the Rededication Scrolls for customers to sign. As the official wagon of each state tours that state, outriders will collect the signed documents. The scrolls are presented to the wagonmaster at each encampment, and the wagon train will deliver them all to Valley Forge.

Under exclusive licensing agreement, granted through the State of Pennsylvania Bicentennial Commission, Wrangler is also offering a special group of official Bicentennial Wagon Train apparel. This includes men's, women's and boys' jean-jacket outfits in denim, corduroy and a leather look, and Wrangler boots in the latest Western fashion designs.

The pilgrimage, which is supported by the American Revolution Bicentennial Committee, the Bicentennial Commission of Pennsylvania and the North American Trail Ride Conference is expected to serve as a cohesive thread for the Bicentennial, and it is hoped it will reach out to all people as an exciting adventure in the spirit of the pioneers.
